SIR FREDERICK MAZE'S GIFT

Model Chinese Junks To Science Museum

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 14.

Sir Frederick Maze, Inspector-General of Chinese Custom, in presenting the South Kensington Museum with a fleet of models of different types of Chinese junk, has done a service to all having an active or an antiquarian interest in shipping and shipbuilding. Until his models reached the Museum there was nothing there of the kind except small boats obviously not constructed to scale. He has had large models scientifically built to plan accurately representing their originals.

One of the models is about 8ft. in length, others from 5ft. to 7ft. They have the particular value that, whereas in China builders of junks do not prepare plans and specifications but construct from memory handed down from father to son, the plans of these models were prepared by trained Chinese who, by long cross-examination of the native builders, extracted the necessary measurements. The models were then built by skilled workmen, and, with their plans, are a permanent record of the system of building and of the materials used.

When the Greeks and the Romans and the Carthaginians were navigating the Mediterranean the Chinese were sailing the Indian Ocean right up to the heads of the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf. Their merchandise was carried in vessels that are believed to be almost identical in structure with those now in Eastern waters. To this day the junk, so unwieldy in appearance and so primitively fitted, is regarded by sailors as a model of seaworthiness.

In China there are hundreds of thousands of junks, ranging up to 500 tons in burden. When time was no object they were adequate carriers, but even in China it is becoming recognized that the vessel that has to wait wind and weather cannot compete with steamships. The junk is so well constructed that she lasts for scores of years, and there is no question of her disappearance for a very long time, but few new ones are being built.

Few Equals

As a vessels for carrying cargo economically junks have few equals. Their under-water lines are fine, their design excellent, and their sails most efficient. The sails, in the shape of a balance lug, are stiffened by battens, each of which is connected with, and actually forms part of the sheet, thus keeping the sails very flat and enabling the junks to point close to the wind. To shorten sail the halyard is merely eased, and the weight of the sail brings it down, a quicker and more economical process than reefing. Masts are usually of single poles, though in some types there is a built-up mast bound with iron collars. Windlasses for hoisting sail, centre boards, leeboards, the balanced rudder the subdivision of the hull into water-tight compartments, and the turret principle for escaping port dues, were all in vogue China long before they were adopted in the West.

Each district has its own special type suitable for local conditions with bluff bows and full lines, or sharp bows with finer lines. Some are painted in bright colours, others are not painted at all, but are heavily varnished with wood oil.

There are two main types, for the open seas and for inland waters. Among the former is the rice carrier, of a capacity of about 500 tons, usually costing nearly £3,000 to build. Length averages about 190ft. and beam 25ft., with a draught of 8ft. loaded. The whip above the truck of the foremost is a warning to evil spirits. Guns are carried for protection against pirates.

The Fukien junk, confining its operations to the China coast as far north as Newchang, belongs to a numerous class, which still successfully competes against steam. The hulls are of soft wood with hardwood frames, and the water-tight compartments, besides being a precaution against accident, are hired by shippers for their exclusive use. The upper stempiece is level with the deck, and the two adjoining wings form effective bulwarks. Passengers and crew are housed in the high poop. The biggest of the junks is the Shangtung five-masted vessel, with a length overall of 150ft. The only navigation implents are a crude compass and a hand lead.

Types of inland water junks are many. The Upper Yangtze trader, plying between Ichang and Chungking through the famous Gorges, is an interesting example. Navigation of the rapids is difficult and dangerous, but long experience has produced a race of watermen of great efficiency and resourcefulness. The junk is usually from 100ft. to 140ft. long and 20ft. in beam, flat bottomed, and of light draught, and carries about 140 tons. The upriver trip of 400 miles takes four to six weeks, and is one of the most fascinating and exciting in the world.

ROYAL NAVY

Cruisers In China

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 14.

H.M.S. Berwick, Captain C. G. Sedgwick, is ordered to leave the China Station in mid-July for home to recommission. She is expected to arrive at Devonport on August 24. It is expected that the Berwick will return to China, in which case she will be the first of the "County" cruisers to enter upon a fourth commission on that station. The other ships—Cumberland, Suffolk, Cornwall, and Kent—are in their third commissions, that of the Kent having only just begun, on May 25, when she recommissioned at Chatham.

The scarcity of cruisers and of men in the Navy to-day is exemplified in the practice of bringing these cruisers of the Kent type all the way home from the Far East to recommission. Even if there was a spare cruiser of sufficient size to convey relief crews for them, there are not the men to allow for what are known as crossing reliefs. The result is that at any given moment one out of the five ships is away from the station for recommissioning. Thus the Kent, now at Gibraltar, should reach Singapore on July 15, to start her third commission on the station. Immediately the Berwick has to leave for England to receive a new crew for her fourth commission.

New A.D.C.

Engineer Captain T. E. Aitkenhead, who has been appointed a Naval Aide-de-Camp to the King, is Fleet Engineer Officer in the Mediterranean. During the first part of the War he was engineer lieutenant of H.M.S. Fox, Captain F. W. Caulfeild, in the East Indies and German East Africa; and from May, 1916, he was engineer officer of the destroyers Minos and Vanity in home waters. Promoted to his present rank in June, 1928, while engineer officer of the battleship Revenge, he was afterwards Fleet Engineer Officer in China.

OLDEST ROYAL SCOT

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 14.

Mr. Alexander Wishart, 44 Comley Bank Street, Edinburgh, who claimed to be the oldest living Royal Scot, has died. Mr. Wishart was one of the few surviving veterans of the 1860 Royal Review and the famous "Wet Review" of 1881. When he was 17 years of age he joined the Queen's Edinburgh Rifles in November, 1859, just a few months after the Battalion had been formed. A printer to trade he was a member of one of the artisan companies. He was a colour-sergeant for many years and retired after 39 years' service in 1898. Mr. Wishart marched past Queen Victoria on two occasions, and passed King Edward in the 1905 Review, by which time he was in the veteran stage.

"GOOD FOR THE SKIN"

Do "you know that there are lots of ordinary things, which you always have handy, which are great beautifiers?

As a nourisher for skin which is dry, parched, and inclined to run into fine lines and wrinkles, oil of sweet almonds is excellent.

Liquid paraffin is a good second, and olive oil is very useful" too, only you need rather a lot of it, and you must use it warmed.

Olive oil bath is capital for hair which is dry and lacks lustre (and this is the time of year it "does" look spiritless!)

Tomato or Lemon

Strained tomato juice mixed with its own volume of boiled water is an excellent bleach, and it is also a very good stimulant. It should be allowed to dry on.

Lemon juice is a wonderful beautifier, but, if your skin is sensitive, dilute it with boiled water.

Rosewater is one of the best mild astringents, and one which is most suitable for delicate or sensitive skin.

If you are making an eye lotion of one teaspoonful of boric crystals to a pint of water, add two tablespoonfuls of rose water also.

Witch hazel, Eau de Cologne, and distilled water, mixed in equal parts, is an active skin stimulant. It is good for applying to an oily skin, or skin which is inclined to blemish.

When you are choosing face creames, if your skin is sensitive remember not to choose a cream which is too thick. Also see that your foundation cream has not too much glycerine in it.

To Suit Anyone

Oily skin really cleanses best with a lotion—and the lotion acts also as a stimulant, which such skins need.

Powders are now made to suit the dry skin and the oily one.

The former is made on an oil base and the latter on a spirit one. You should see that you get the powder which your type of skins needs, and make certain that it blends well both in colour and texture.

Everything in the way of a beauty preparation that you use for your face you should also use for your neck and for your hands.

Would Wash Next Time

The barber had used his electric clippers in cutting small Betty's hair.

"I guess my neck wasn't clean," she told her mother on coming home, "'cause that man used his vacuum cleaner on it."

An Unusual Pudding

A nourishing pudding can be made in the following way. To 1 lb. sifted flour add a pinch of salt, ¼ lb. of butter, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two eggs, and enough milk to make a stiff paste. Knead the dough well, roll out thinly, cut out with a cutter or a glass, and fill each round with a cheese mixture which is prepared from cream cheese, adding to it a tablespoonful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of ground almonds, and 2 oz. of well-washed sultanas. Cover with another round of dough and moisten the edges with a little milk. Put in a pudding basin containing a ¼ lb. melted butter and bake for half an hour in a fairly hot oven. When ready it should be crisp and golden brown in colour. When it is baked, add half a gill of cream and serve hot.

Coffee Pudding

Coffee pudding is made by soaking half a dozen sponge cakes in a gill of hot black offee with a walnut of butter, then beating this up with the yolks of two eggs, a tablespoonful of of castor sugar, and a little vanilla flavouring. The stiffly whipped whites of the eggs are stirred in lightly at the last, and the mixture is then steamed in small greased moulds about three-parts filled.

Flummery Is Delicious

Those of you who have only heard of flummery have now an opportunity, by using this recipe as made forty years ago.

1 oz. of gelatine, 3 lemons, 6 ozs. sugar, the yolks of 2 eggs, and a short pint of boiling water.

Soak the gelatine in cold water while you grate the rind of 1 lemon, and squeeze the juice of 3 over the sugar, dissolve the gelatine in the boiling water and add to it the lemon and sugar, stirring for a few moments with a silver or wooden spoon.

Then add the egg yolks and stir well till the egg is mixed; strain through muslin into a pot or glass mould.

If liked, the whites of egg may be whisked and added to the jelly, when ready for setting, and the whole whisked to a sponge.

A Summer Favourite

Because of the delicacy and fine flavour of chicken it is an especially favoured meat for summer service. It may be prepared so many different ways that it never becomes tiresome through repetition.

Chicken San Francisco

Put a spring chicken cut in pieces into an iron pan coated with olive oil. Season with salt and pepper and keep turning until the chicken is browned on all sides Add 1 green pepper chopped fine, a sliver of garlic and a dash of sage. Add a whe-glass of sherry. Then a small can of tomato paste, a can of button mushrooms and a dash of suggar. Simmer for 10 minutes, add ½ tablespoon butter and serve.

Chicken Loaf

Two cups diced, cooked chicken, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon chopped green peppers, 1 tablespoon chopped celery, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika 2 eggs, 2/3 cup milk, 3 teaspoons chicken fat or butter, melted Mix ingredients. Pour into a buttered baking dish or loaf pan. Bake for 35 minutes in a moderate oven.

Stewed Chicken

Cut chicken in pieces for serving, fry in ½ cup oil with 2 chopped onions. Add 1 cup ripe olives, stoned, ½ pimento cut in strips, 1 cup strained tomato, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon each paprika and pepper. Simmer till tender.

Almond Toffee

Almond toffee is easy to make at home. Put two cupfuls of granulated sugar and half a cupful of water into a pan and stir them (over a gentle heat) until the sugar has dissolved. Then allow the mixture to boil, and when boiling add a quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar mixed with a teaspoonful of water. Boil the mixture without stirring for about half an hour till it is pale yellow in colour. Then remove it from the heat and stir in two ounces of butter, two ounces of almonds (previously blanched and cut into halves) and a drop of almond essence. Pour the toffee into a well-greased tin and mark it into squares when it is set.

To-day's Limerick

A painter, who lived in Great Britain,
Interrupted two girls with their knitain,
He said, with a sign,
"That park bench—well, I
Just painted it, right where you're sitain."

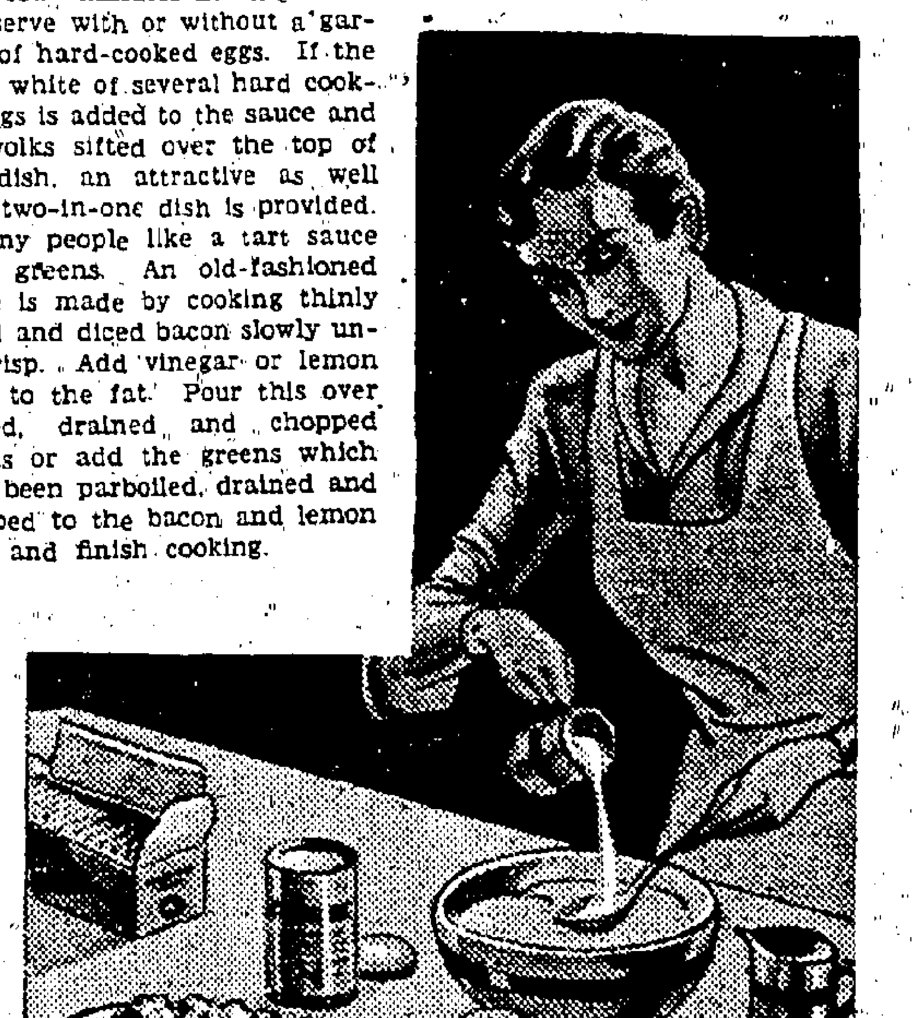
DELICIOUS CREAM SOUP IS MADE FROM GREENS

Cream Soup

To make a cream soup of any green, cook the greens in just enough boiling salted water to cover. When tender rub through a sieve and combine with an equal amount of thin white sauce well seasoned with salt and pepper and a few grains of nutmeg.

Greens also are good served in a rich salted water. Drain and chop and add to prepared sauce. Cook few minutes in the sauce and serve with or without a garnish of hard-cooked eggs. If the diced white of several hard cooked eggs is added to the sauce and the yolks sifted over the top of the dish, an attractive as well as a two-in-one dish is provided.

Many people like a tart sauce with greens. An old-fashioned sauce is made by cooking thinly sliced and diced bacon slowly until crisp. Add vinegar or lemon juice to the fat. Pour this over cooked, drained and chopped greens or add the greens which have been parboiled, drained and chopped to the bacon and lemon juice and finish cooking.



TWO PUDDINGS

Steamed or Baked

Both these puddings are light and easy to prepare. For fruit sponage, stew a pound of apples to a pulp with sufficient water and sugar and the juice of half a lemon. If preferred, other fresh or bottled fruit may be used, but when cooked it should be a good, thick pulp. Put this at the bottom of a greased pie-dish. Then cream together the weight of one egg in sifted self-raising flour. Beat this well until light, and cover the fruit pulp with the mixture. Bake until the sponge is golden and firm: it will take thirty to forty minutes. The oven should be hot for the first fifteen minutes, then moderate.

The following pudding can either be steamed or baked, but if baked the mixture should be made just a little softer than if it is steamed. Put into a bowl a tablespoonful of butter and beat it to a cream; add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and beat again. Then add two tablespoonfuls of self-raising flour and two of ground rice, alternately with a beaten egg and about three tablespoonfuls of milk. When it is light and creamy, thickly cover a greased pie-dish or pudding-basin with golden syrup, pour in the mixture, and bake for thirty to forty minutes, or steam for an hour and a half.

For this excellent dish of baked calf's liver (admirably accompanied by mashed potatoes), you will want a whole piece of calf's liver, not as usual cut in slices.

Make some deep cuts in the liver at regular intervals, and stuff them with a mixture of hard-boiled egg, bread-crumbs soaked in stock and pressed dry, chopped parsley, salt, pepper, and, if you like, a little finely chopped garlic. Cover the piece with a caul, and bake it in the oven until the liver is done.

At Last

"Most interesting," said the sweet young thing to the motor-car salesman, "and now show me the depreciation, please. I hear it is heavy in these cars."

"As matter of fact, madam," replied the opportunist, "we found it a source of worry and had it removed altogether!"

HOME MADE CAKES

"As short as a Shrewbury Cake" is a saying in the English West Country, and the celebrated cakes were made long ago, and well deserve the popularity they have.

They are easy to make, but the oven must be only moderately hot when they are put in on a greased bakingsheet. When done they should be of the colour of shortbread.

To 1½ lb. of flour allow a pound of butter and a pound of castor sugar, one egg, the rind and juice of one lemon, and half a gill of cream or sour milk.

Warm the mixing-bowl, put in this the butter and sugar and cream this. Beat up the egg, add this, then sift in the flour and well mix. Add the grated lemon rind and mix again; add the lemon-juice, an lastly the cream. Well mix again, then turn on to a floured board and knead it.

Plant Yet Fancy

Leave in a lump of dough for about half an hour, then roll out rather thin, and with a wine-glass stamp into rounds.

Children like their Birthday Cake to be iced, and if ornamented with preserved cherries, candied flower petals or even the homely "hundreds and thousands," a cake that is quite plain inside will appear a delicacy.

A plain sultana cake, a Madeira, or even a sponge mixture can be coated with pink icing, then decorated.

Here is a good example: To ¾ lb. of flour allow ½ lb. of ground rice, ½ lb. of sultanas, ½ lb. of better, castor sugar, 3 level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a pinch of salt, 3 eggs, and enough milk to make into a stiff dough.

Cream the butter and sugar, mix flour, salt, baking powder and ground rice. Beat up the eggs, add them to the creamed butter, then sift in the flour mixture; well mix; lastly, add the fruit, and then enough milk to make into a stiff dough. Bake in a moderate oven. It can then be iced with pink or chocolate icing and decorated."

Orange Kisses

Orange lend a summery, refreshing flavour to the sweet course.

Orange Kisses.—Oranges (as required), 2 whites of egg, 4 oz. castor sugar.

Peel the oranges, removing as much of the whole pith as possible, then divide into quarters. Add a pinch of salt to the egg whites, and whisk them to a very stiff froth.

Add gradually about three parts of the sugar and continue whisking until the mixture is quite stiff, then fold in the remainder of the sugar lightly. Place oblongs of this the same size as the orange quarters) on a lightly buttered tin, place a piece of orange on each, and cover with meringue.

Dredge with castor sugar, and put into a warm oven until set and of a very pale colour. Serve cold.

DAINTY, appealing jellies can be made with little trouble and expense by using Cerebos Jelly Crystals. Everyone will relish their delicious fresh fruit flavours and enjoy their cooling and refreshing qualities.

COOL DRINKS FOR HOT DAYS

Nothing is so attractive as the sound of ice tinkling in a glass on a hot summer's night, so may be these recipes will help to solve the difficulty of the ever-present drink problem for that party you are planning.

Sherry Cobbler

Into a large jug put four tablespoonsful of granulated sugar and cover it with lemon, peeled and sliced very thinly one orange cut into tiny pieces, and a good tablespoonful of minced or chopped pineapple.

Add two cupsful of pounded ice, then cover the jug and shake as hard as you can until the contents seem thoroughly mixed.

Now add a pint of ice water, stir for a minute, and add four wineglasses full of good sherry. Stir vigorously and it is ready for use.

Sauterne Cup

Put four tablespoonsful of sugar into a bowl, strain over it five tablespoonsful of lemon juice and leave this on ice for an hour.

Stir well and mix into the syrup a tablespoonful of diced pineapple, one handful of strawberries or white grapes seeded and halved, and a few slices of cucumber.

Now add a bottle of sauterne to the mixture. Place a block of ice in the centre of a punchbowl and pour over the sauterne mixture. Then add a bottle of soda water that has been on the ice for some hours.

Orange Cup

Take five oranges and peel and slice them, having first removed both the pips and pith, place them in a tall jug and cover with a cupful of soft sugar. Let this stand for two hours.

Pour into the jug one pint of orange juice, the strained juice of two lemons, one pint of cold water and some cubes of ice.

Stir this for five minutes, preferably with a wooden spoon, then leave on ice until required.

A Savoury

The use of cream crackers in connection with savouries is becoming popular, and a delicious savoury may be made with cheese, celery (or celery salt), and cream crackers. Beat a little cream cheese with a few teaspoonfuls o thick milk and add French mustard to taste. Cover each cream cracker thickly with this mixture. Place the biscuits under a red-hot grill and brown them slightly as quickly as possible. Chop some celery finely and sprinkle it over the cheese, pressing it in slightly for serving purposses. Serve the cheese and celery savoury as hot and as quickly as possible.

Make some toast and cut into fingers. Spread each of these with some good bloater paste mixed with butter, about half and half, and on this spread a layer of whipped cream flavoured with Krona pepper. Arrange very thin pieces of bloater fillets criss-cross on each toast, and put a small caper in each of the lattice-squares.

Ham and Anchovy Rolls

Cut some very thin slices of lean ham butter them very carefully with a warmed knife, and roll up an anchovy fillet in each. Serve them on very thin pieces of toast.

Prawn Toasts

Pound the prawns, and thicken them with olive oil, adding it drop by drop as for a mayonnaise. Add lemon juice when the mixture gets too thick, and when it is a fairly stiff cream spread it on rounds of toast. You can season it with salt, pepper and a little paprika.

Sailors' Toasts

Pound up the yolks of three hard-boiled eggs with a very little dry mustard, a tablespoonful of chopped shallots, a sprinkle of parsley and a little butter. Season with salt. Spread the toasts with this, and cross them with a couple of thin strips of anchovy fillet, with a caper or so as an extra deloration.

Sardine and Soft Roe Toasts

Skin and bone some good sardines, and pound them with two or three cooked soft herrings' roes Add about the same amound of butter and season with salt, pepper and, if you like, cayenne. Use this mixture spread on your toasts, decorating if you like, with a little chopped yolk of egg or chopped parsley.

Epicure's Toasts

Spread each with a mixture of Roquefort cheese, butter and chopped dried walnuts in equal parts.

"SLIMMING" AND THE DIET

"Slimming" diets are often arranged to cut out all fats, but this is not to be recommended. Certain fats contain valuable Vitamins, and we must retain them Bacon, lard and olive oil, which do not contain these vitamins, may be cut out, but their place should be taken by small doses of cod-liver oil or halibut-liver oil.

A certain in amount of fat is necessary for the body, for it has a high fuel value, but fried fats should be avoided so far as possible. It has been said that there would be much less stomach trouble to-day if all foods fried in meat fat were avoided, butter or a vegetable oil being used for the cooking.

Foods to Avoid

Sugar, jams, sweets, chocolates, honey, and nuts must be ruled out in planning a "slimming" diet, and tea should be taken without milk or sugar—a slice of lemon being substituted for them. Bananas should be replaced by apples or oranges on every possible occasion. Potatoes may be taken in moderation; so may cheese and eggs. Cod, halibut and whiting are rich in protein—what the body requires more than any thing else—but very low in fat. Salmon and herring contain twenty times as much fat as whiting, cod, or halibut, and for this reason the former should be avoided.

The ordinary lean meats—beef, mutton and veal—contain on an average less than 5 per cent. of fat, but ham and bacon contain as much as 50 per cent. With this information it will be easy to decide what to eat and what to avoid. Bacon contains no vitamins, is poor in protein, but may contain as much as 66 per cent of fat. It should find no place in the diet of the woman, who wishes to get slim.

It is a mistake to think that biscuits and toast are better than bread, being less fattening. Biscuits frequently contain as much as 75 per cent. of starch—nearly twice as much as bread. The reason is that here is much more water in bread than in biscuits or toast. Weight for Weight, then, biscuits are twice as fattening as bread—and they may contain sugar, which should be avoided.

Fruits and Vegetables

Eat freely of all fresh fruits, but avoid bananas and dried fruits. All vegetables may be included in the diet, but potatoes and beans in moderation. Duck and goose are anything but "slimming" but rabbit, hare, chicken and turkey may be freely eaten, since their protein content is high and fat content very low.

Milk is 90 per cent. water practically, and its fat content is 3½ per cent. on the average. In all slimming diets, the consumption of liquil should be dieting, seven ounces of skimmed milk, is given per day, since the fat is reduced to one-tenth that of ordinary milk. A very small piece of cheese, and half a pint of water might well replace this milk. If the quantity of fluid be restricty to two pints per day, and that allows for three or four cups of weak tea with lemon, it leaves practically no margin for milk in the diet. Skimmed milk might as well be replaced with water, and if bread is eaten in moderation, the butter on it will provide enough fat without bringing milk into the diet.

PECAN TEA MUFFINS

HYGIENIC method of Packing ASPRO EXPLAINED

PLANT.

THE 'SANITAPE' METHOD EXPLAINED.

The plant consists of the most up-to-date and efficient mechanical apparatus, including a number of 'SANITAPE' machines, which seal the tablets hygienically in specially prepared wax paper compartments.

This system is known as the modern HYGIENIC 'SANITAPE' method of packing, and because of its thoroughly protective properties, ensures that 'ASPRO' retains its original high standard of purity. This should serve to commend 'ASPRO' to all who appreciate the absolute necessity of purity in medicine.

The wonderful human-like 'SANITAPE' machines are one of the most ingenious and highly developed engineering triumphs of modern times. The machines wrap the tablets with anerring regularity in waxed paper, divide the paper into separate compartments, crimp each compartment so that no air can find access to the tablet, fold the tapes, and finally pass them through sprays of paraffin wax, effectively sealing the 'SANITAPE,' and rendering the tablets proof against damp, moisture and any form of contamination.

ELIMINATION OF HANDLING

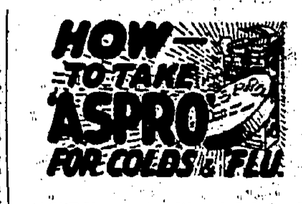
The 'SANITAPE' method of packing has a distinct advantage over the crude and obsolete system of hand packing. At no time during the process of manufacturing, compressing and packing, do 'ASPRO' Tablets come in contact with the human hand, therefore, contamination from this source is entirely prevented, the tablets reaching the consumer in the same perfect hygienic state as when they left the tableting machines.

'ASPRO' BRINGS SWEET SLEEP TO THE SLEEPLESS

There are many thousands of people who now have sweet peaceful sleep, who hitherto hardly knew the meaning of a period of restfulness. 'ASPRO' has brought about the transformation by its sweet soothing influence on the nerves, and breaking up of local feverish conditions. Two tablets before retiring is the usual dose.

PROCESS.

The production of Acetyl-Salicylic Acid in its really purest form is a difficult and expensive process, requiring the services of highly skilled chemists. The cruder forms of this product contain free Salicylic Acid, which is expressly forbidden in the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopœia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. The unskilled tablet maker may start with a pure drug, but by lack of the latest knowledge may turn out tablets containing free Salicylic Acid, liberated during the processes necessary to prepare the powder for compression. We make the following positive claim for 'ASPRO' tablets. THEY ARE MADE FROM BRITISH MANUFACTURED ACETYL-SALICYLIC ACID, FREE FROM ANY TRACE OF FREE SALICYLIC ACID AND CONFORMING TO THE TESTS OF ALL KNOWN AUTHORITIES. THE TABLETS ARE MADE BY PROCESSES WHICH ENSURE THAT THEY ARE OF THE SAME STANDARD OF PURITY AS THE ORIGINAL DRUG, AND CONTAIN NO TRACE OF FREE SALICYLIC ACID. NO CHALK, TALC OR OTHER MINERAL IS USED AS AN EXCIPIENT, WHICH IN 'ASPRO' TABLETS IS A HIGHLY REFINED FOOD PRODUCT.



'ASPRO' makes positive, definite and clear claims that it will relieve an Influenza or Cold attack in one night and it proves it. You can prevent 'Flu by taking 2 'ASPRO' Tablets at the first sign of a Cold, and 2 tablets every three hours afterwards until the symptoms disappear; a hot lemon or whisky drink to be taken with the last dose before going to bed. It is advisable when taking 'ASPRO' for Influenza and Colds to keep the body warmly clad in order to prevent chill. The value of 'ASPRO' for Influenza was proved in Australia when the Pneumonic Influenza Plague ravaged the country, and the Federal Parliament proclaimed 'ASPRO' a Necessary Commodity in the public interest.

Vegetable Sandwiches

Method.—Spread the slices of bread with butter and then put together in 4 or 5 layers spreading each with a different filling such as—chopped beetroot (boiled), shredded lettuce, chopped carrot (boiled), chopped tomatoes and cream cheese. Press well together and wrap in a damp cloth and when ready to serve cut in slices.

Pear Sandwiches

Ingredients:—Pear, pepper, salt bread.

Method:—The fruit must be quite ripe. Cut it in two, remove the stone and scoop out the pulp with a spoon. Mash the fruit and season with pepper and salt. Spread between thin slices of bread, trim and cut into shape.

Cheese and Chilly Sandwiches

Ingredients:—Grated cheese, green chillies, bread and butter.

Method:—Spread some slices of bread with butter, sprinkle grated cheese and a little chopped green chilly over half of them, cover with the remainder of the bread, press together, trim and cut into shape.

Asparagus Sandwiches

Ingredients:—Asparagus tips, bread and butter.

Method:—Cut the asparagus tips in 2 inch lengths and split them in two or use them whole. Place each piece on a thin slice of well buttered bread and then roll up.

N. B.—If liked sprinkle a little grated cheese over the asparagus.

Beignets au Parmesan

These fascinating dainties are nothing less than "eclairs" flavoured with parmesan cheese. In case you do not know how to make eclair pastry, this is the way to set about it.

Put 2 ozs. of butter into a pan with ¼ pint water and bring it to the boil. Draw the pan to the side of the stove and gradually stir in 2½ ozs. of sifted flour and a pinch of salt. Place the pan over fire again and stir it until it is sufficiently cooked to leave the sides of the pan. Cool slightly and then beat in two eggs adding them one at a time.

If you are making sweet eclairs a teaspoonful of powdered but this will be omitted in added but this will be omitted in in the cheese pastry. Instead you can include a little grated parmesan cheese (other grated cheese will serve if the latter is not obtainable).

Sweet eclairs are baked in the oven before their filling and coating is added, but cheese eclairs are best fried in deep oil.

As the eclair mixture is moist you should pipe it in fingers on to a greaseproof paper. Get your fat or oil up to the proper heat then turn the grease paper over into the boiling oil when the "beignets" will come away quite easily from the paper which can then be withdrawn.

Plain Scones

Rub 1oz. butter into ½ lb. flour, add a teaspoonful of baking powder and a pinch of salt, and mix in enough sour milk to make into a dough. Roll out and cut into rounds, brush over with the white of an egg, and bake in a fairly quick oven for about a quarter of an hour.

ALWAYS USE BRITISH SELOCHROME ROLL FILMS . . . AND YOU WILL GET THE FINEST PICTURES.

NEW CLUB COMES TO LIFE

Leading Foreign And Chinese Players Join

Shanghai, June 22.

As further evidence of the increasing popularity of tennis in Shanghai, and in response to a demand for more and better playing facilities, still another club has been newly organised, known as the Shanghai Tennis Club, this following hard upon the inauguration of the Cathay Tennis Club. The newest club takes over the tennis grounds formerly occupied by the Chinese National Amateur Athletic Federation, at the Pioneer Field, located at the corner of Rue Chapsal and Rue Conty.

The Shanghai Tennis Club has been formed by a group of enthusiasts whose object is purely the promotion of sport and sportsmanship, and it is their hope to promote international goodwill through this medium. For that reason, the membership has been made open to both Chinese and Foreigners. Aiming at the encouragement of healthy competition, the club will work in close co-operation with the National Amateur Athletic Federation, the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association, and other tennis clubs, so that Shanghai may see ever better tennis.

An Ambitious Programme

In order to stimulate interest in the game, the club will hold inter-club, inter-collegiate, inter-hong matches, invitation tournaments, and other competitions. It will also invite leading players from other parts of the world to play exhibition matches here. By way of improving the grounds, the club is arranging to lay out six more courts, in addition to the ten now available, of which four are hard courts and six grass. A pavilion combining comfort with utility also will shortly be built on the grounds, equipped with baths, lockers, modern sanitation, and other necessities for the convenience of members and guests.

It is not the intention to make the club an exclusive organisation, but merely to promote interest in the game by providing high-class facilities. The membership is literally open to all and the fees are reasonable, while the courts will be available all day and all through the year.

Well-known Officials

To ensure that adequate conditions are provided the club has invited the popular local tennis champion, Mr. Khoo Hool-hye, to be its executive secretary, arrangements are being made to secure the professional assistance of Mr. R. Canavarro as instructor. Prominent local leaders, including Dr. H. H. Kung, Mr. T. V. Soong, Mayor Wu Te-chen, and Dr. C. T. Wang, have been asked to be patrons of the Club, while all the ranking Chinese and foreign players, as well as others keenly interested in tennis, have been invited to become honorary members.

On Sunday afternoon, at 3 p.m., the club will formally open with several exhibition matches. Invitations to play have been send to Gordon Lum, Kho Sin-khie, W. H. Duff, L. D. Carson, M. Benavitch, Guy Cheng, Billy Yu and V. T. Wong. Khoo Hool-hye also will participate. Mayor Wu will open the club at 3 o'clock.

"4 FRIGHTENED PEOPLE"

And A Banyan Tree!

For the first time in the production of motion pictures, fans will have the opportunity to see a true banyan tree used in a feature picture.

This may not sound like a startling bit of news to those who have never seen a banyan tree, but Cecil B. De Mille brought work from Hawaii that it was worth the entire trip merely to get one for location scenes in his latest Paramount picture, "Four Frightened People," now showing at the King's Theatre.

Mere figures on the size of the banyan tree which De Mille used cannot altogether describe its effect of immensity and eerie mysticism, he declared.

For two nights, Claudette Colbert, Herbert Marshall, Mary Boland, William Gardan and Leo Carrillo went through scenes in its shade. In the daytime, the tree was awe-inspiring enough, but with movie lights trained on it at night, bringng out stranger shadows and high lights, it was transformed into a scene like that from a magnificent midnight inferno.

The banyan is an evergreen species of fig which sends out aerial roots from its branches. These roots grow into prop trunks apart from the main trunk, and in turn they send out branches which also develop aerial roots and so on into infinity.

This constant, spreading growth of the banyan tree symbolized mystic eternity to Buddha, and it was for this reason that he spent six years sitting in its shade in meditation.

For the dubious there is encyclopedic, as well as actual proof, that several thousand people can find shelter in the shade of one banyan tree. The specimen used by De Mille covered an area of 25,447 square feet, with a 540 foot outer circumference. The main trunk measures 94 feet around the base, making a diameter of about 31 feet. The famous giant Redwood trees of California average fifteen to 28 feet diameter, while the largest known is about 35 feet.

But it is not the main trunk of the banyan tree that is of importance. It is but the starting point of what looks like a forest in itself, but which is only one tree continually perpetuating itself all over the landscape.

Although it rained during the two nights while De Mille was working there, cameras, lights and players found themselves well protected under its 180 foot spread.

Adapted from a best selling novel by E. Arnot-Robertson, "Four Frightened People" relates in dramatic fashion how four people, trained in the ways of civilization in its most aristocratic style, become mere humans when they are suddenly lost in a dense jungle, from which they must fight their way out.

"BOMSHELL"

At The Oriental

To film a motion picture within a motion picture was the unusual task that befell producers at Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer studios during the making of "Bomshell," the story of a sensational motion picture star's life and troubles, which comes to the Oriental Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

The picture, co-starring Jean Harlow and Lee Tracy, tells the tale of a glamorous star, her intimate life in her home and at the studio, of the fame that is heaped upon her by scandalous publicity created by her dynamic press agent, of the troubles she endures through her relatives, her lovers and her fans.

Jean Harlow plays the role of the trouble-beset film star. Lee Tracy is her publicity director.

The action of the story takes place during the filming of "Born for Men," a mythical screen story in which, in "Bomshell," Miss Harlow is the star and in which, incidentally, though he never appears on the screen, Clark Gable is supposed to have the opposite role.

"FEMALE"

Opening To-day At The Queen's

One of the most startling love themes ever presented on the screen will be unfolded at the Queen's Theatre to-day with the showing of the First National picture, "Female," with Ruth Chatterton in the stellar role.

This story, by Donald Henderson Clark, is not of one love, but of many. It reverses the role of the philandering male with Miss Chatterton playing the part of huntress who casts a cool and calculating eye on the handsome young men she selects for her vampish, nocturnal adventures.

These are mostly employees of her own concern, for she is a big business woman who heads an automobile manufacturing plant. She is as ruthless in love as in her financial dealings, for she carelessly casts the young men aside as soon as she tires of them and they try to carry the courtship into the office.

As Alison Drake, the business executive, she feels that she is a super-woman who is not bound by the ordinary conventions of the world about her. It is not until she discovers there is one man who will not succumb to her wiles that she wakes up to the fact that her slant on life is a twisted one. No in a long while has Ruth Chatterton offered so powerful a portrayal and so moving a drama.

George Brent plays the leading masculine role, his fourth time opposite the star. Others in the cast include Lois Wilson, Ruth Donnelly, Ferdinand Gottschalk, and Johnny Mack Brown

EVER IN MY HEART

Otto Kruger In The Lead

Barbara Stanwyck comes to the Alhambra Theatre to-day in her latest starring vehicle for Warner Bros., "Ever In My Heart" a picture that calls for the expression of the deepest and most powerful emotions she has ever been called upon to portray.

The story by Beulah Marie Dix and Bertram Millhauser combines rare and beautiful romance with pulsating dramatic action, and tender pathos. It is the story of a New England girl who marries a German professor and whose happy life is broken up when her husband returns to his Fatherland to serve in the army during the World War.

Their fight to retain their romance in the face of stinging cruelties of relatives and former friends is a brave though hopeless one. The drama becomes more tense as they are torn apart by circumstances they cannot surmount and winds up with a smashing climax when they come face to face in France where the young wife is a canteen worker and her husband a spy for the German army.

It is a far different role from anything which Miss Stanwyck has before been called upon to portray. Gone is the unmoral, gold digger, of "Baby Face," "Ladies They Talk About" and "Illicit."

There is an exceptionally strong supporting cast with Otto Kruger, one of the greatest players of the legitimate stage, playing the leading masculine role. Though comparatively new to the screen, Kruger is an accomplished actor and is famous on the Broadway stage for his strong characterizations.

"GOOD DAME"

An All-Time Record

Fredric March has hung up the world's all-time record for the longest single acting performance ever recorded in Hollywood or any place else.

The performance began on July 1, 1933, an didn't end until well on in January, 1934.

It was completed with the B. P. Schulberg-Paramount picture, "Good Dame," in which March is co-stared with Sylvia Sidney. The film comes on Saturday to the King's Theatre.

In that time, March worked five months continuously without a single day's vacation. He worked until almost ten o'clock every night, even including Sunday.

In that time, he starred in four important Paramount pictures, including "Design for Living," directed by Ernest Lubitsch; "All of Me," "Good Dame," directed by Marion Gering, and the picturization of the Broadway stage success, "Death Takes a Holiday," which has not yet been released.

In the first two, he was co-starred with Mirian Hopkins; in "Good Dame," with Miss Sidney, and in the latter, Evelyn Venable plays the leading role.

In "Good Dame," the third of the pictures, March is cast in an entirely new kind of role, for him. Usually the suave sophisticate, he is here given an opportunity to play of a "bad" boy who refuses to be attached permanently to any "dame."

"Good" dames "get in his hair," even when he meets Sylvia Sidney, the "good dame" of the picture's title. Fighting against his love for her, he is drawn into an emotional vortex that furnished some of the season's most amusing film scenes.

The two, determined to hate each other, can't help falling in love, and it takes a stirring dramatic moment before they realize the futility of the struggle.

ECHOES OF 1861

28—Amateur Theatricals and Expenses

There is a rumour current, but we do not vouch for its authenticity, that the lucky gents, have made the "amende" to Mrs. Greig by writing back the $75 which they charged her for the theatre, by paying for the lights, etc. out of their own pockets and by assisting her in her performance. In point of fact doing precisely as the gentlemen amateurs did at Singapore and at other places when visited by Mrs. Greig, who in bidding for the patronage of the public threw herself upon their gallantry.

As for Mr. Debarr, our amateurs have arranged to pay all his expenses from and after the 1st instant. This does not come out of their own pockets but out of the receipts of the public nights. We cannot vouch for this either—but shall be very happy to do so when we believe it.

When the Amateur came before the public last Monday, he was not aware of the arrangement which had been made, and was completely misinformed. He stated that the $75 charged Mrs. Greig by one of the Committee was simply the current expenses of the house, and that no profit whatever was sought nor expected. It turned out that the arrangement made with Mrs. Greig by one of the Committee was this. Seventy five dollars for the use of the house, "and the expenses besides, which could not be fixed but which should be ascertained when the Compradore should bring the bills in." We can vouch for this having been the arrangement—such of our readers as heard the speech before the curtain on Monday week, know what was said. It has been suggested to us, but we cannot be responsible for the statement that when the party making that speech discovered the misrepresentation palmed off upon him, he fainted away in excellent style declaring he would set himself right with the public at the next subscription night. The party who "squeezed" Mrs. Greig has had his champagne stopped.

Around the Courts

UNMUZZLED DOGS.

"On beaches they are a nuisance, whatever age they are; they can still carry rabies," remarked Mr. Macfadyen, in the Central Police Court yesterday, when he fined Sergeant W. T. Cubitt, R.A.S.C., of No. 2 "B" Block, Kennedy Road, $8/- for allowing his dog abroad unmuzzled and unleashed on Big Wave Bay Beach.

Defendant:—I plead guilty, but I would like to say, sir, that my dog is only a spaniel puppy and is not more than six months old. It was only unmuzzled for ten minutes. The child was playing with it.

Answering a similar summons in respect of Repulse Bay Beach, Franz Tolle, of No. 1 Felix Villas, stated the dog was in the water without a muzzle, but as soon as it went on to the beach he put on the muzzle.

The Magistrate:—Was the dog running about the beach?

Sergeant Brown:—I saw it just coming out of the water. A dog is just as liable to bite in the water without a muzzle.

Defendant was fined $5.

Private B. Wyatt, R.A.O.C., of No. 74 Jaffee Road, was fined $8 for allowing his dog abroad in Stone Nullah Lane unmuzzled and unleashed.

NO LICENCE FOR RADIO SETS

"Mrs. K. Iida, residing at No. 58 Johnstone Road, ground floor, was yesterday fined $50 on the first charge and cautioned on the second when she appeared before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy charged with dealing in radio sets without a licence and alternatively with possession of a radio set without a licence.

E. Quinlan, residing at No. 4 Yik Kwan Avenue, first floor, was fined $10 for possession of a radio receiving set without a licence.

DOG OWNER WARNED

Danger of Rabies Spreading

Mrs. F. C. Duckson, residing at No. 14 Kent Road, Kowloon Tong, was yesterday fined $10 at the Kowloon Magistracy by Mr. Wynne-Jones for allowing one of her two dogs to go unmuzzled in Kent Road on June 7.

Defendant was also served with summons in connection with another dog which had since died, so His Worship discharged her on that summons.

Mr. Wynne-Jones warned defendant that from July 1 she would be fined $25 on a similar summons.

His Worship stressed the necessity for muzzling dogs and remarked, "The medical officer at the Kowloon Hospital told me the other day that there had been 17 cases of dog-bites in the Kowloon Hospital. Rabies had been proved to be existent on the Castle Peak Road, at Shingmun and in Yanmati."

"A child died the other day at the Kowloon Hospital from rabies in the most appalling state and anyone having seen it would do their utmost to prevent rabies spreading by muzzling their dogs."

"Any humane person would rather see all the dogs in Kowloon and in the New Territories shot rather than see a person die of rabies," concluded His Worship.

Mr. B. E. Dudley of No. 10 Kent Road was also fined $10 for allowing his dog to be unmuzzled at 5.30 p.m. on June 8 in Kent Road.

Mr. C. Gray, residing at No. 16 Hankow Road was fined $10 for a similar offence in Hankow Road on June 9.

BODY DUMPING

"He died as I was taking him to a doctor," pleaded a woman named Chan Sum, aged 34, who was yesterday fined $25 by Mr. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy, for dumping the dead body of a five months old male child in Yenchow Street on Tuesday.

Detective Sergeant Poyntz stated that defendant was seen near the Shamshuipo Police Station yesterday crarying something in her arms. Her behaviour aroused the suspicion of the officers who sent an Indian constable to follow her. She went into a side lane in Yenchow Street and deposited a parcel there. This was later found to be a dead male child aged five months.

His Worship:—What did the child die of?

Sergeant Poyntz: — Bronchial pneumonia, your Worship.

WORKING IN PROHIBITED HOURS

"You had better be careful: you'll lose the full value of your order the next time," warned Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday when addressing the manager of the Koon Wah Knitting Factory who was summoned for allowing women to work on the premises during prohibited hours, and who was fined $25.

Inspector Phillips of the S.C.A. said he visited defendant's factory at 10.50 p.m. on June 15 and found eight women working.

Defendant stated that he had just received a small order from one of his regular customers and was trying to fulfil it.

POSSESSION OF ARMS

Wu Siu-shan, alias Wu Cheung-yau, alias Wu Tim, 25, was yesterday sentenced to one year's hard labour by Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy, for possession of two revolvers and five rounds of ammunition.

Accused who entered a plea of guilty to the charge of possession of arms without a licence, said he used to be seafarer and was at present unemployed.

The two revolvers and the ammunition were discovered by Detective Sergeant Fowlie and a Police party when they raided the third flood of No. 10 Wo Fung Street early on Tuesday afternoon.

The accused was convicted and an order for the confiscation of the revolvers and ammunition was made.

Adamson's Claim Succeeds

"SORDID CASE FROM FIRST TO LAST"

Chief Justice Comments On Evidence

Judgment with costs for the plaintiff was given by his Honour Mr. Justice A.D.A. MacGregor yesterday in the case in which Mr. F. L. Adamson sued Mr. N. Blumenthal of the Marcel Cafe, Nathan Road for 40 per cent. of the estimated porfits over a year, amounting to $6,488 and for free meals for his wife and himself over the same period, estimated at $1,004.

The computation of the damages from the date of the dismissal to the date the plaintiff's contract would have terminated was left in the hands of the Registrar. The amount claimed with regard to meals was agreed to.

Yesterday, Mr. Adamson and his witnesses occupied the time of the Court. Their evidence amounted to a total denial of the allegations of drunkeness against the plaintiff.

Claim For Wrongful Dismissal

Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by R. H. Cole of Messrs. Hall Brutton & Co. appeared for Mr. Blumenthal, while Mr. Adamson was represented by Mr. Leo D'Almada e Castro junior, instructed by Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios.

In giving his judgment the Chief Justice said: "Fortunately the time of this Court is not frequently occupied with such an unedifying story as this and it is again fortunately rare to find a case in which there is such an "extreme conflict of evidence. Happily it is not necessary for me to decide upon which side the fault lies.

"The claim is one for wrongful dismissal. The fact that the plaintiff was engaged by the defendant as manager of the Marcel Cafe is admitted, as also the fact that some time after midnight or in the early morning of October 5, that engagement was terminated by the defendant.

"It is therefore for the defendant to justify his action in so terminating the agreement. In support of such termination the defendant has set out ten proofs of misconduct. The important matters alleged by the defendant as good grounds for terminating the employment are (1) habitual intoxication, (2) Under that habitual intoxication plaintiff failed or refused to close the licensed premises within the time prescribed by law and (3) that he neither kept books nor accounts for the money which he received on behalf of the defendant."

Dealing with the question of accounts, his Lordship found it quite impossible to say that the plaintiff did not do all that he ought to have done in regard to the keeping of books. His Lordship pointed out that there was a cashier kept in the Cafe.

"Not Flattering" Opinion

"I cannot believe, that the defendant whom I have seen and heard, and of whose money methods I have formed a perhaps not altogether flattering opinion, can for a period of three weeks tolerate a state of affairs in which the manager of his buffet brought in less money than he ought to have without taking action early from the period such occurrence took place. Furthermore I find it difficult to think that it would not have been possible for the defendant to produce some independent evidence on this point."

His Lordship found that the allegation of drunkeness appeared to be very curious. According to the defendant up to the time he went to Japan, the plaintiff had been "a perfect gentlemen." The moment the defendant returned, the plaintiff appeared to have embarked on a calculated and sustained career of drunkeness over night.

Again, his Lordship asked, why should the defendant who had been a license holder for many years either in Hongkong or in adjacent ports, have tolerated a state of affairs which endangered his license?

"I have tried in every way that I can to do full justice to the defendant, but I find it impossible even to appreciate his argument that he did not take any steps because he was waiting for his accounts."

His Lordship concluded his judgment in the following words: "It is a sordid story from first to last and I propose to say no more of it than this: the onus being on the defendant to satisfy the Court that he had proper ground for terminating this agreement, he has failed to discharged that onus. There will, therefore, be judgment for the plaintiff.

Plaintiff's Evidence

Plaintiff giving evidence said he was working on a commission basis selling beer, cement and other materials for the M.B.K. He had been doing since November and often his sales scarcely paid for his apartment rent and food.

Mr. D'Almada:—How did you meet Mr. Blumenthal

Witness:—He came to my wife and myself when we were eating at the Cafe and broached the matter of the Buffet and said he was not doing very well with the place.

What else did he say —He offered me half the place for $1,500 and then found that he could not do this because of the licence, so he offered me 40 per cent. of the profits and free meals to manage the Buffet.

What were his reasons?—He was after the American mercantile trade which he was not getting.

He made an agreement with you?—Yes.

Was there ever a suggestion of any other secret agreement between you?—No.

Did you understand that you would have a free hand apart from certain restrictions as manager?—I was told by Mr. Blumenthal to go ahead and do what I liked to get business.

What was the business like when you joined?—They were apparently doing nothing.

Since you joined what was the business like?—It became popular about a month afterwards and remained so until I was dismissed.

You were well acquainted with the licensing laws?—Yes.

The type of customers you attracted to the Buffet was sometimes inclined to be difficult?—Yes.

Free Drinks

And it was the kind of customer who would like on occasion to fraternise with the manager?—Well, I had a lot of friends among them.

And sometimes you would give a free drink on the house as allowed in your agreement?—Yes.

And get drinks for yourself and friends at cost price up to the value of $50 a month?—Yes.

I think it would be incorrect to say that you hate drink?—Yes. I could not say that.

How many drinks would you have in a day?—I might have four or five, six or seven, or none at all.

You hold your liquor well?—Yes, I think so.

Was there any cause or complaint by Mr. Blumenthal or his sons until his return from Japan?—There were complaints but no reason for them. Not from David but Leon Blumenthal, the incident giving rise to them being the transfer of the money to the Marcel Cafe.

Did you have trouble about two small boys —Never.

You have heard the reasons Mr. Blumenthal has given for dismissing you?—Yes. I deny them all.

Witness went on to say that he was not habitually drunk and in fact was never drunk; never used bad language in the cafe, but rather tried to suppress it; was not familiar with the servants, but gave them a drink when they gave his wife a birthday present; did not fail in acounting for the takings, because that was the cashier's job, and did not assault Mr. Richter, manager of the Marcel Cafe.

The last incident, he said, arose out of an altercation between Richter and his friend Greenway, in which witness acted as mediator.

Knowing that Mr. Blumenthal would like "to have something on me," witness said he reported the matter to the Water Police Station but found that the Blumenthal's were before him and had said that the manager had been assaulted by two big bullies and had his shirt torn from his back.

Mr. D'Almada:—Did you drop your general claim for damages on legal advice?—Yes.

Is it because you feel the injury to your reputation is not worth $9,000?—No, that has nothing to do with it.

Is it because you were chary of being cross-examined on that point?—No.

Cross-Examined

Cross-examined by Mr. Macnamara, witness was asked:—Your estimate of profit would mean that you would have to make $2,000 a month profit?—No, a little less. I expected to increase the business by $150 a day gross.

Witness added that it would have been a regular gold mine.

Dou you know that the buffet was closed up in April?—Yes. Shut up because one shop was taking money from the other.

Your original claim was for damages for loss of credit and reputation? — Yes, after being kicked out and accused of being drunk.

This is not the first time you have made a claim in the courts of Hongkong for damages?—No.

Mr. D'Almada objected that this matter did not enter into the case.

The Chief Justice ruled that the question was permissable as the whole of defendant's case was that plaintiff was unsuitable for the

RUSSIAN DEPORTED

Alexis A. Nikijok, a Russian who was remanded from Tuesday on a charge of having entered the Colony without a passport last Sunday, was ordered to be deported from the Colony when he appeared before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

Detective Sergeant Mottram said that a Mr. Rakusini had borrowed $600 from defendant's father in Harbin last year, and defendant had been authorised to collect the money. Mr. Rakusini had already paid back over $400, and had written to defendant when he was in Macao on June 16, telling defendant his financial matters would be settled in September next. In spite of this, defendant had come to Hongkong.

His Worship remarked that he had no jurisdiction in regard to a transaction which had taken place outside the Colony, it was defendant's own fault for coming to Hongkong.

Mr. Hamilton warned the defendant he was not to come back without a proper visa.

Kikue Shibahara, a nineteen year old Japanese waitress of Nagasaki who also charged with having entered the Colony without a passport was also convicted and an order was made for her expulsion.

Detective Sergeant Mottram said that defendant presented herself for registration yesterday, and inquiries then made showed that she had arrived in the Colony on board a Japanese coaster, the Lushan Maru, on June 10, from Shanghai. She had no passport.

Ho Wun, a married woman, was cautioned by Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, on a summons of having failed to notify the change of address of her registered mui-tsai. Sub-Inspector Fraser, of the S.C.A. remarked that the mui-tsai was well cared for, and was sent to school and treated as a member of the family.

Accident To Wanchai Gasholder Recalled

AT THE WEST POINT DISASTER ENQUIRY

Witness Complimented By Jury: Examination Of Holders

Mr. D. Marshall, the superintendent of the West Point Gasworks was called to give evidence at the resumed hearing at Central Magistracy yesterday, of the enquiry into the circumstances surrounding the West Point Gas explosion disaster on May 14.

In the course of his evidence, Mr. Marshall said that he did not know that putty had been put into the holes. He was complimented by the jury for the clear and candid way in which he gave his evidence when he left the witness box.

Mr. L. J. Blackburn, a former resident engineer and general manager of the Hongkong and China Gas Co., Ltd., the owners of the holder, recalled the accidents to the holder at Wanchai, while Mr. W. A. Mackinlay intimated that more expert witnesses will be called.

Mr. E. W. Hamilton sat as Coroner and was assisted by a special jury comprising Messrs. P. Tester, L. Dunbar and D. Drummond.

The Hongkong and China Gas Co., Ltd., was represented by Mr. W. A. Mackinlay, of Messrs. Deacons, and Mr. W. M. Brown, of Messrs. Hastings and Co., watched the proceedings on behalf of certain property owners whose property was damaged by the disaster.

More Experts To Be Called

Continuing his evidence from the previous hearing, Mr. L. J. Blackburn, M.I. Gas. E., a former resident engineer and general manager of the Hongkong and China Gas Co., Ltd., the owners of the holder, said that gasholder plating was normally, and had for the last 70 or 80 years, been on an average of about 1/10 of an inch thick and he could produce a technical book dated 1859 stating that fact. The plates corroded very unevenly. It was common experience where one made a patch in the centre of the plate and found the whole of the remainder of the plate perfectly good. He had put numerous patches on many holders including some at Wanchai on the occasion of rocks having pierced through the shell of the holder by blasting operations. He mentioned this because a hole in the sheeting was not necessarily dangerous either to the structural strength of the holder or its liability to a serious accident. The largest hole he found in the Wanchai holder was about 12 inches by 10, which was caused by rocks piercing the side of the holder during blasting operations at Morrison Hill.

In reply to the Coroner, Mr. Blackburn said that there was a rush of gas but no further plates came off. The holder in Wanchai was built in about 1900-1901. The date of the accident was some time between 1926 and 1927, and the age of the holder at that time was 25 or 26 years. On that occasion it was nearly emptied of gas. He saw the open edges but there was not much internal corrosion. One cannot afford, however, to take a good look at it internally because the gas was escaping all the time. The hole had to be patched up as soon as possible.

Coroner: How many cubic feet of gas was blown out?

Mr. Blackburn: I forget exactly, but I think it was about 100,000 cubic feet.

Coroner: Nearly one-third as much gas as in this disaster?—Yes.

Mr. Blackburn then went on to say that there were no buildings in the vicinity of the Wanchai gasholder. The hole was made on the Morrison Hill side but he could not say definitely which side was the wind blowing. There had in fact been three occasions on which the holder was damaged but he just wanted to mention only one.

Coroner: Did the gasholder come down on each occasion?—Yes, but not to the same extent.

In reply to another question, Mr. Blackburn said that there was nothing near enough to cause ignition.

The buildings in West Point were nearer than one could wish but he had seen some cases in England where the house were nearer.

He considered there was a danger of ignition in the houses nearby if there was an escape of gas. He meant ignition in the point of houses but not in the holder.

Coroner: But it must flash back?

Explosion Outside

Mr. Blackburn: It all depends which way the wind is blowing.

Continuing, Mr. Blackburn said that he could not visualise any plates, even the thinness of plates, falling away from the gasholder as had been suggested, without some outside violence. With his experience of gasholders, he said it was unthinkable that the plate could get away in the manner suggested without some violent detonation outside. He did not think it possible that the plates could be torn away by the action of the heat. He thought there must be a big detonation outside. After examining the plates he came to the opinion that there was a detonation which punctured the holder and then there was a mixture of air and gas outside the holder followed by a second explosion close to the holder, which ripped the plates open. From the look of the plates he should say that the point of ignition was plate C5. The detonation might have been caused by a bomb or some explosive, or there might have been an explosion from the roof of Chung Shing Street. It was the only possible way. He could not visualise any plates falling out of the holder apart from this cause, from this cause. He could not agree with Mr. J. G. Charlton that the cause was due to buckling.

He might say in support of his theory that during the 1925 strike the police informed him that there was a plot to bomb the gasholder and that they would provide a guard. He could not agree that there was an explosion in the watchmen's hut.

In reply to the jury, Mr. Blackburn said that it was doubtful whether wrought iron could be used instead of steel. What was used in the old days was "puddled iron." He thought "puddled iron" was more lasting than steel but it was just as liable to corrosion. As a matter of fact he doubted if there was any "puddled iron" at the present time.

FLASH OF FLAMES

Mr. Daniel Marshal, A. I. Gas, E., M.A.I.E., the works superintendent of the West Point Gasworks, told the Court that he had been in the gas industry for nearly 11 years—five and a half years in the Perth Gas Corporation and the remainder of the time with the Hongkong and China Gas Co., Ltd. He was now works superintendent of the company, and actually came under Mr. Stone.

At the time of the explosion, he was standing in the yard about 200 feet north of the holder. He was facing in that direction. There was a small boom which he did not pay much attention as "booms" were common in that district. Then there was a flash of flames rushing in a south west direction about 250 feet long, and the holder came down with a rush about one and a half seconds later. As the flames went right across there was a loud roar, followed by another "boom," presumably caused by the holder striking the bottom of the tank. He shouted to the No 1 to shut off the exhauster to stop the whole process. He then ran to the top of the holder which was already down. That was about 10 or 15 seconds after the collapse. The place where he was standing was not hot, although the gas was still coming up due to the pressure of the main or that the exhauster had not yet been stopped by this time. There were flames about seven or eight feet high. He could see that No. 13, Chung Shing Street was on fire. He thought it was the top floor. It seemed to be burning in the centre of the house and it seemed to him to have been burning for some time. He also saw the verandah of a house in Clarence Terrace on fire and was of the opinion that it could have been put out had the inmates done anything about it.

He then left the holder and went to the exhauster house to make sure that the engines had been stopped. Later he returned to the holder and saw that the house in Clarence Terrace was well alight. At this time the fire brigade arrived and fearing that the wall of No. 13 Chung Shing Street might collapse and fall into the holder, thus causing an explosion, he had four firemen play a hose on the wall to prevent it from falling. He remained on the top of the holder with Mr. Stone until the fire was put out and assured that there was no danger. After that they went back to the works to arrange for the gas supply to be put into operation again.

Coroner: Did you see any of the injured in the yard?

Mr. Marshall: I saw the Indian watchmen, Talu Ram and Santha Singh in the north side of the yard. They were badly burned. They did not say anything to me at all. They were sent to hospital at once.

In reply to another question, witness said that the gas supply was resumed between 2 and 3 p.m. His particular job was to examine the holder once a week, but not on any special day. If there were any high winds or rain it would be dangerous to go up the holder, and the work had to be put back to another day.

Coroner: How do you examine it?—First of all I go round the lutes to see that the water level in the seals is correct. From there I can see the seams on the top half of the lower lift and the bottom half of the upper lift. If I see anything suspicious I would tap it with a scraper. After I have examined the sheetings or seams I would go to the crown itself to examine the guide and the guide wheels and also the lower guide wheels.

Mr. Marshall then went on to say that on the Friday previous to the accident, May 11, he climbed up the girder where he could see every sheet of the holder. He also examined each seam on the crown of the holder. Everything seemed to be sound then. It took about three quarter of an hour to examine the holder.

Coroner: Were you aware that the plating on the South West side was very much worse than the North East side?—I don't think it was very much worse.

What would you think if the plates had come away?—It would be worse than I thought it would be. Any patches I put in seemed quite sound.

No. Internal Examination.

What about this 18 inch seam which was open?—I don't know when that was done. The first examination I made on the holder was about 15 or 16 months ago. I didn't notice that seam then. It must have been painted over.

You know the one I am referring?—I think I do.

If you had known it, you would have put a patch in it?—Yes, your Worship, but that is exceeding the ordinary standard practice, if I may say so.

When you were at Perth, did you examine the holders internally?—It is usually the senior engineer's job. I sometimes followed him.

I mean internally?—Oh, I have never been doing that.

You agree that it is not the custom or the ordinary standard practice to examine a gasholder internally?—I agree, your Worship.

How old are you?—29.

Do you know that there is a gradual feeling of nervousness by many gas engineers at Home about internal examination?—They are not so dogmatic now as they were twenty years ago.

Mr. Marshall then added that he read the "gas Journal" regularly but had not seen any reference that internal examination of gasholders was necessary.

Had he been able to examine the holder before the accident he would still think that the holder was sound.

In reply to a further question, Mr. Marshall said that he did not put any putty in the holes. A Mr. Hollands, who was now in England, was his predecessor. A hole could be detected by a hissing sound and a small streak of tar on the spot. He usually put on metal plates and between the joints he put red lead putty. Mr. Hollands never told him about the putty. The holder was last painted in October, 1932. The usual procedure was to scrape it first and then have it brushed downwards.

When he looked up at the holder at the time of the accident, there was just one mass of burning gas going as far as the nullah.

Coroner: If the holder came down in about one and a half seconds would that cause a spark?—Very unlikely. Even if it would, the rush of gas would stop the fire as the mixture would be too rich. I don't know where the ignition took place.

Did you have a lot of patches at Perth?—About the same number as this one.

How many patches in this holder?—I have put six or eight big plate patches and patched two small holes.

Jury's Appreciation

At the conclusion of the evidence, the Coroner remarked: Mr. Marshall, the jury wish me to say that they appreciate the clear and candid way in which you gave your evidence.

The Coroner then said that he would call Mr. Brooks and Mr. FitzHenry of the Fire Brigade to give evidence at the next hearing. He inquired of the Hon. Mr. Wolfe if he could get some of the inmates of No. 11, 12 and 13 Chung Shing Street to give evidence as there was clearly a suggestion that the last named house was on fire before the explosion.

Mr. Wolfe remarked that he could.

Mr. Mackinlay intimated that Mr. Baker, chief engineer of the Shanghai Gas Works and two directors of Messrs. Samuel Cutler and Sons, Millwall, the constructors of the holder, would be called to given expert evidence.

The enquiry was adjourned until Friday afternoon.

BUILDING IN 1933

INTERESTING REPORT BY COLONIAL SECRETARY

Over 1,000 New Houses Built

"The building industry continued to evince considerable activity throughout 1933 but failed to reach the level of the previous year and noticeably receded from the high peak reached in 1931," according to the report of the Colonial Secretary on the Social and Economic Progress of the People of Hongkong, for 1933.

"The total number of plans approved for new works was only slightly less than for the previous year. The number of new buildings covered by such plans shows an appreciable decline; this is particularly noticeable in Chinese tenement property. The falling off in the number of European houses erected does not truly reflect the amount of new accommodation provided. The type of development tended towards the provision of flats three, four, and in some cases five storeys high. These flats afford the accommodation hitherto provided by the erection of the detached and semi-detached houses which had figured largely in the Returns of the preceding three years.

Commercial Buildings.

Buildings of a non-domestic or commercial character shew an increase over the Returns of the preceeding year.

Amongst the more important buildings completed the following are noted:—Emporium and Restaurant in Queen's Road Central, Bank building and office in Des Voeux Road Central, School and Quarters for the Salesian Society on Island Road, Chapel at Shaukiwan, Theatre in On Yan Street, Cinema in Boundary Street, a factory in Kai Yee Street and Printing Works at Ma Tau Kok, School in Waterloo Road, Building for Aged Women and Sisters' Quarters at Ngau Chi Wan, and the Hongkong Brewery erected at Shan Tseng Bay.

European type flats of moderate rental have been a feature of the past year's construction although Chinese tenement property is still the largest factor.

The number of European houses completed during the year is 259. The number of Chinese houses is 832.

In Wanchai.

On the Praya East Reclamations, 147 Chinese houses were erected making up to date a total of 973. The new Sailors' Home and Seamen's Institute and a large Chinese hotel were both completed during the year under review. The Royal Naval Canteen is still in course of construction.

The number of water flushed sanitary appliances approved during the year amounted to 3,622.

Fifteen fires occurred causing structural damage which necessitated action by the Public Works Department. Loss of life was occasioned in two instances where the buildings were of the old type of construction with wooden floor and staircases. It is pertinent to note that in no case where fires have occurred in the modern tenement houses constructed of reinforced concrete floors, roofs and staircases have casualties occurred nor has the fire even attained serious proportions nor extended beyond the floor upon which it originated.

Reclamations were in progress on the following lots in Hongkong: I. L. 2918, I.L. 3538, I.L. 3540. A total area of about 207,000 square feet is embraced in the above works.

Reclamation works at Kowloon include K.M.L. 52 and K.M.L. 102. The total area involved being about 200,000 square feet.

ASSESSOR'S REPORT

Fall In Rental In Chinese Tenements

In the course of his report upon the year 1933, the Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor, Colonial Treasurer and Assessor writes:—

By Order of His Excellency the Governor-in-Council a new valuation of the whole Colony has been made. The new Rateable Value amounts to $38,641,856 as compared with $38,941,273 last year a decrease of $299,417 or 0.77 per cent.

The decrease in the valuation of the City of Victoria is due partly to the fall in rentals following the depressed condition of trade in the Colony throughout the year and partly to deductions made on account of water charges following the introduction of meters on the

In Hongkong villages the decrease is due for the most part to general depression in the Colony and consequent lower rentals.

In Kowloon the increase is due to the building of new shops and European flats.

In the case of New Kowloon the increase is largely due to Chinese tenement houses in Shamshuipo and some further building at Kowloon City on the new layout.

The number of tenements reported to be vacant averaged about 1,100 monthly, as compared with 439 last year. This is the greatest number of vacant tenements ever reported, the next highest number being 445 in 1927-1928, and is partly due to the building activity of 1932-1933.

In the ten years from 1924-1925 to 1934-1935 the rateable value of the Colony has increased by $16,493,905 or 74.47 per cent.

The fall in the rentals of Chinese tenements continues, and is becoming more general. The rents of shops and offices in the central part of the City are now beginning to be affected by the trade depression.

FOG CHALLENGES INVENTORS

In spite of all that has been done to aid shipping by modern science, there is no doubt that fog is still the greatest menace to navigation. This is borne out by the fact that a vessel, groping for a landfall in thick weather, guided by a radio beacon, submarine signal, automatic depth finder and powerful air siren should fail to clear a fixed guidepost.

One recent example is the Nantucket disaster which may be called a challenge to the inventive genius of men. This challenge, we feel, will not be allowed to pass unheeded. Already, a "fog camera" which penetrates fog at a distance of several miles, with its exposures developed almost immediately, has been used with success on the United States Lines steamer, Manhattan, and in appreciation of the camera's practicability, the inventor, Capt. Flavel M. Williams, has received a special gold medal from the American Museum of Safety.

Two noted physicists, Dr. Francois Henroteau of Canada and Dr. Vladimir Zworykin of the Radio Corporation of America, have announced the invention of almost identical devices which appear to be complete solutions to the fog question. The device is really a supereye which picks up through a lens scene ahead, even through fog, and reproduces it on a nine-inch square screen in photographic detail. Constantly operating like a motion picture camera, it records instantly every movement and change as though the scene were being viewed in person. Conditions surrounding the Nantucket collision indicate that the mishap occurred at the point where the proximity of the liner to the light vessel necessitated a switchover in navigational procedure from radio direction bearings to "picking up" the lightship by observing the direction of its fog siren.

But determining direction by sound is notoriously deceptive in fog. It is this human element that is liable to fail and it is this one vital gap in the chain of modern navigation where a fog-penetrating device would have averted disaster.

CANTON AIR SERVICE

To be Resumed in July

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, June 27.

Resumption of air service between Canton and Shanghai will be resumed late in July after the arrival of two giant Commodore passenger planes from the United States, which were ordered by the China National Aviation Company some two months ago.

At first Sikorsky amphibian planes were used, but two of them were damaged and one was lost at Hangchow Bay with all hands on board. More safety devices are to be used in this route, which is considered one of the most important airways operated by the China National Aviation Corporation.

The new machines can accommodate twenty passengers and are equipped with latest improvements and facilities for blind flying. Two aviators of the Corporation went to Floria to learn blind flying, for the China coast is often visited by fog, and blind flying will overcome this danger.

At present air mail service from Canton to Shanghai goes via Hankow through the Eurasia Aviation Corporation. When the Shanghai-Canton service is resumed, it will carry mails and passengers with calls at Swatow Amoy, Foochow and Wenchow.

CHINA'S STARVING MILLIONS

Woman Speaker Appeals For Sympathy

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 14.

"Thirty million people in China are always near starvation level and 3,000,000 die each year from want of food. Facts we must not overlook when we are told that Japan must have Manchuria because of her population problem. The materials which Manchuria can give are as urgently needed by China, and there are 28 Chinese in Manchuria to two of every other nationality."

This statement was made in Glasgow by Dr. Margery Fry former principal of Somerville College for Women, who has recently been lecturing in China under the auspices of the Universities China Committee, the body which administrates the English side of the Boxer Indemnity Fund. The luncheon at which Dr. Fry spoke was organised by the Glasgow branch of the League of Nations and the Glasgow Soroptimist Club.

Dr. Fry stressed the heavy burden of taxation, which is making the Chinese farmer poorer and poorer. She said that in many cases taxes were paid 40 years in advance. She contended that there was a notable growth of national life among younger China, evidenced by the development in agriculture, education, and road services.

Not Unnatural Hesitation

"When we blame the League for lack of intervention in the Chiness-Japanese troubles we must remember that Japan is powerful to do what she pleases in the East, and that the League may well hesitate to interfere and irritate. In Shanghai square miles of wrecked city are a monument to the most wanton assault on a peaceful neighbour the world has ever seen.

"It is essential that Europe should have patience with regard to China. A civilisation which has endured for 3000 years cannot be condemned because it has not found its feet in the new conditions of the last 25 years. China may, I believe, be the greatest nation of the future; it is vital that she should come into the comity of nations with good feeling."

WINDSOR LAD WINS THE DERBY

Colombo Finishes Third: Jockey's Dramatic "Come-Back"

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 14.

Windsor Lad, the Maharaja of Rajpipla (15-2) 1
Easton, Lord Woolavington (100-9) 2
Colombo, Lord Glanely (11-8)... 3

The King and Queen were present at Epsom on Wednesday to see the Maharaja of Rajpipla's Windsor Lad win one of the most exciting Derbys of recent years. The time equalled the record set up last year.

The hot favourite, Lord Glanely's Colombo finished third, a neck behind Easton, the mount of Gordon Richards.

After the long drought it was very disappointing to the great crowd that showers fell during the day, but fortunately the rain was not sufficient to interfere with the big race.

The Royal Party

Their Majesties, with the Duke and Duchess of York, the Princess Royal and the Earl of Harewood, the Duke of Gloucester and King George of Greece, drove to the course in cars. They were received by the Earl of Lonsdale the Earl of Rosebery and the Marquis of Crewe.

The Prince of Wales and Prince George arrived just before the second race.

The King sent for the Maharaja, who was conducted to the Royal box, congratulated him on his win, and chatted with him for several minutes.

The King gave his usual Derby Day "dinner" at Buckingham Palace last night to members of the Jockey Club. About fifty guests, including the Prince of Wales and other male members of the Royal Family, attended the dinner given in the State dining-room at the Palace.

The Queen departed from her custom of dining at a friend's house. She had an early dinner at the Palace with Princess Alice and the Earl of Athlone, and afterwards went with them to the Queen's Theatre.

The Elephant's Bow.

A young elephant wearing a garland in the purple and cream colours of Windsor Lad's owner played a prominent part in last night's festivities. Shortly after midnight the elephant and her trainer made their appearance on the floor of the Savoy Restaurant, where the Maharaja was entertaining forty guests to celebrate his horse's victory.

Proceeding in solemn measure round the floor, the elephant made obeisance opposite the table where the Maharaja was sitting and then marched off amid rousing cheers. The elephant had been specially introduced into the cabaret as a compliment to the Maharaja.

Unlucky Day For Favourite

"Hotspur," in his description of the race says the luck of the race was not with Colombo and his jockey W. R. Johnstone.

"Colombo was running on at the finish, which makes me think he was not beaten because he could not stay the mile and a half," he writes. "He was pocketed at the most vital stage of the race."

Smirke who rode Windsor Lad, made a dramatic "come back" after his suspension.

MORE A FETE AND LESS A RACE

There was a bad patch this morning when the Clerk of the Weather seemed suddenly to have scratched his favourite, Drought, and to have forgotten that Derby Day was a promised starter, writes a correspondent.

When the rain fell sharply an hour before the race, those of us on Epsom Downs, who had fields or gardens, felt that we might have been misunderstood when we asked for rain; we had intended the Clerk of the Weather to repent of his dryness but not to repent just yet.

So the weather changed back, and the thousands of people who had backed Derby Day for a place were rewarded. It drizzled just before the race, and it drizzled just after. Whether it was drizzling in those exciting moments when Windsor Lad, Easton and Colombo raced past the stands, none of us had eyes to see.

I will not say that it was an outstandingly popular win, welcomed with a hot fury of cheers. But "bookies" and "backers" alike seemed remarkably cheerful perhaps because they had for once a winner they could all pronounce. Wiseacres who maintain that the Derby favourite never does win beamed to see their prophecy accomplished, and a public-spirited lady near me made the unexpected remark, "Well, I'm glad I lost."

Twenty minutes before I heard a woman on the less wealthy side of the course tell her little girl: "No stewed steak for you to-night, if Colombo don't win." The little girl laughed, and I hope her mother put something on Colombo for a place, or won the stewed steak back in the later races.

Changes in 70 Years.

There were those at the Derby to-day, the Earl of Lonsdale among them, who were alive when Frith painted that best-known of Derby Days that hangs in the National Gallery. More than three-quarters of a century have passed. Jockeys have changed their seats; the coaches have become motor-coaches and omnibuses, beneath which one can shelter from the rain. An autogiro supervises the traffic from above, and Frith's grandstand could go, I should say, a dozen times in modern stands.

What of the crowd for whose sake the shrewd Frith admitted he kept the horses in the background? That soldier in red, whom he placed near the centre of his picture, now wears khaki and no side-whiskers, but the soldier was there to-day in groups of twos and threes. So was that elegant lady rider on the left, whom the artist painted from the beautiful huntress, Miss Gilbert, but to-day I observed her straddling a horse, hatless and in breeches.

The acrobat and his child were missing but their successor was the man who got himself half-fainting out of a strait-waistcoat.

Yet, if an onlooker of a younger generation may venture a guess, the crowd of to-day's Derby differed in more than clothes and numbers from the Derby Day watchers of seventy-five years ago. The successors of the carriage folk are less insouciant, the descendants of the smocked farmer's boy less simple and less violent in their partisanship. The Derby has become more a fete-day and, despite all the tipsters whom you may pay a penny for their thoughts upon the Downs, less of a race on which to plunge your spirits with your sixpence on your "pony."

The Derby brings all sorts and sizes of mankind, from the gipsy woman I met in the crush, admonishing her baby in arms. "You'll be knocked down, sister," to the man whose sister married the richest young man in London (who was standing not far behind me), and the specialist in tropical diseases whom I met among the side-shows.

Epsom Downs have surely the most cheerful revivalists in England. I listened enraptured to the gentleman who began, "Everybody likes expressing their ideas; my father used to express his by having a bit of a scrap," before I passed on to his colleague, who was admonishing a happy audience that Christianity means singing, and a man who's no singer is no Christian.

I left the course, musing upon three odd pieces of knowledge I had gained: the first, that the only tipster "Captain" with a nautical uniform came from Leeds: the second, that Derby jockeys are so small that the whole number went to the starting-post in two fair-size cars; and the third, that you seem to be able to visit the Derby by road or rail and come or go with far less difficulty than at that smaller festival, an international "Rugger" match.

Perhaps this last knowledge is not so odd. For the Derby combines, as traditional things should, spontaneity with perfect organisation.

YEARLY VISITOR TO ENGLAND

The Maharaja of Rajpipla, who is one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the Turf, both in India and England, has realised a long-cherished ambition by winning the Derby. Although he races many more horses in India than in this country, his success here include the Irish Derby and the Irish Guineas.

Ruler of a State in Bombay with an area of 1,600 square miles and a population of 206,000, he comes to England every year and spends the summer at his house near Windsor. During his stay, which usually lasts five or six months, he makes a point of visiting practically every race meeting in the country.

The Maharaja is a horseman as well as a horse-owner. He has ridden since a child, and won his first race at the ago of 8. His prowess as a polo player is well known in India.

He is one of the most popular social figures in London, and at his parties at Windsor, which have acquired a special distinction, there are congregated famous personages from every walk of life.

While in London the Maharaja likes to adopt a Bohemian guise, and frequently makes excursions to the Strand, where he lunches on beer and a sandwich.

"I like to regard myself as a Londoner," he once remarked. One of his favourite amusements is to explore London from the top of a 'bus.

'It's All In The Empire.'

Windsor Lad's time was 2min 34sec, equalling the record for the race set up by Hyperion last year. The horse was bought at the Newmarket July sales two years ago for 1,300 guineas.

The Maharaja of Rajpipla, who did not hide his joy at his success, said:

"Didn't I always say what a good horse he was? How happy I am. You see, it's all in the Empire, this victory, and oh, what a magnificent reception. How can I thank the public for it? What cheers they gave my good horse."

Charles Smirke, the jockey, has staged a dramatic "come-back" by his victory. For some years he rode the horses of the Aga Khan, which were trained by Mr. R. C. Dawson, and in that capacity he was successful in a number of important races. Unfortunately he incurred the displeasure of the Jockey Club Stewards at a period when he was on the crest. For several seasons his licence was withheld.

NEWSPAPER MEN RETURN

Impressions on Northern Trip

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, June 27.

Two Chinese newspaper men here who joined their Hong Kong colleagues to a trip to the Yangtsze Valley and North China returned here to-day. The local Press Association has published a notification that the Canton journalists travelled on their own accord and did not in any way represent the Canton Press Association.

According to these returned scribes, they were royally treated and entertained at Nanchang by General Chiang Kai Shek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission. They are therefore loud in singing praises of the military achievements of the Nanchang chieftain and his present campaign to round up the Communists.

It appears that as a result of intensive drive by the Nanking troops only six countries in Kiangsi and four countries in Fukien still remain in the hands of the Communists. The Chinese newspaper men did not actually visit the Red zones but claimed to have received reliable military intelligence to this effect at Nanchang. Based on these reports, the visiting journalists believe that the Communists can be totally cleaned up by the end of the year.

The newspaper men noted the fine spirit among military officers in Kiangsi. They are under the impression that the military leaders in Kiangsi are working hard. The province, they said, has made progress in reconstruction especially building highways which amount to 2,000 miles. All miscellaneous and exorbitant taxes in Kiangsi, they added, have been abolished.

North China is in critical condition, according to these journalists. There is a state of nervousness among the people who fear the Japanese may extend their grip to North China.

AMERICA'S PURCHASES OF SILVER

MESSAGE TREATED WITH GREAT RESERVE IN LONDON

Suggestion Of A Vote Catching Measure

London, June 27.

London silver circles are unanimous in treating the associated message from New York with the greatest reserve.

It is pointed out as almost incredible that the United States Treasury would announce its intention to purchase a huge amount of silver before the end of the year, thus encouraging speculators forcing up the price, and it is also very doubtful whether it would be possible to purchase such an amount within the period.

It seems more likely that the Treasury will acquire silver quietly without disturbing the price in accordance with the recent statement of Mr. Henry Morgenthau, the Treasury Secretary.

It is suggested that the message may have been inspired with a view to catching votes for the Democrats at the coming elections. —Reuter.

PURCHASES OF SILVER

American Treasury Announcement

Washington, June 26.

Administration officials believe that the new silver purchases plan will cause a currency expansion of at least $940,500,000, with a corresponding increase in commodity prices by the end of the present year.

This was disclosed in official quarters after Senator Dies had announced that the Treasury Department had already bought about 70,000,000 ounces, although, he said, the exact amount could not be positively ascertained because the white metal was being purchased on American account in markets throughout the world, and the Treasury tabulations were not yet up-to-date.

It is reported elsewhere that the average price paid hitherto for silver by the Treasury has been 44 cents an ounce.

Estimate of Needs

Senator Dies said the Bureau of Printing and Engraving is far behind schedule in the printing of new silver certificates to be issued on the basis of the metal.

He said he estimated that the Treasury would need to buy 1,254,000,000 ounces to comply with the new law requiring purchases until silver constitutes 25 per cent. of its monetary reserve.

It is estimated that the above figure, added to what the Government already owns will give the United States about 2,000,000,000 ounces.

Treasury officials arrived at their $940,500,000 estimate by multiplying 1,254,000,000 ounces by 75 cents, saying the United States would be lucky if it obtained around one-fifth of the world's total supply without paying more than an average of 75 cents an ounce.

Treasury Statement

The Treasury announces that silver receipts under the executive order from December 21, 1933, until June 22, 1934, amounted to 8,945,000 ounces, while purchases for the week ended June 22, totalled 380,532 ounces.

Purchases are now being made from the general fund of the Treasury rather than from the Stabilisation Fund. The value of silver bullion held on June 22 was given as $45,828,000, as compared with $44,873,000 on June 1.

Gold receipts, under the anti-hoarding order, amounted to $28,119,000 in gold coin and $60,453,000 in gold certificates.—Reuter.

SILVER STOCKS DROP

In Spite of Withheld Supplies

New York, June 27.

Stocks of silver held in American refineries dropped from 11,865,000 ounces to 7,174,000 according to the Bureau of Metal Statistics despite the fact that refiners are withholding supplies for some months in order to reap the benefit anticipated from a price advance.

The silver market attributes a sudden shrinkage to the fact that contracts entered into six months or more ago are falling due.—Reuter.

ARMS EMBARGO AGREEMENT

Question Of Italy And Japan

London, June 26.

Questioned as to the conditions reached by Italy to her acceptance of an arms embargo on Bolivia and Paraguay, the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon in the House of Commons to-day said he understood that the Italian Government had made their acceptance of the contemplated measure conditional upon acceptance by a number of other specified Governments.

As the Italian list included the U.S.S.R. and Japan, invitations were duly transmitted by the League Committee of Three to the Governments of these two countries to participate also.

The Government of the U.S.S.R. had announced their agreement. The position as regards Japan was that a formal agreement had not yet been given although it has been explained that no exports of arms had in fact been sent from Japan to Bolivia or Paraguay.

Italy's Stipulation

The Italian Government had also stipulated that current contracts should be exempted from the proposed embargo.

This difficulty had not yet been overcome, though the League Committee of Three had recommended that if such a reservation was to be made, a definite and very brief time limit should be laid down, during which it should be operative.

Sir John Simon added that he had no information as to the duration of the existing Italian contracts.

Over thirty countries have declared their agreement in principle with the proposed arms embargo, Italy and Japan being the "only two Governments on the list of those approached from which such a declaration has not, as yet, been reached.—British Wireless.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DISAPPROVES

Fourteen Bills Vetoed

Washington, June 26.

After announcing his intention of broadcasting another message to the nation on Thursday evening, President Roosevelt to-day vetoed no fewer than fourteen routine Bills which had passed through Congress during the closing days.

The President disregarded the usual custom of allowing the measures to die a natural death for want of the Presidential signature. Instead, he wrote on each "Disapproved," appending a brief statement of the reason for refusal to sign.—Reuter.

GERMAN DEBT TALKS

Delegates Arrive In London

London, June 26.

The German debt delegates arrived at Liverpool Street Station to-day and drove to their hotel with a Jewish taxi-driver.

A Berlin message states that prior to the departure of the delegation for London the German Government despatched a note regretting that it was unable to accept the arguments of Great Britain which, it states, seem to be partially based on a misunderstanding of the proceedings of the Berlin transfer conference.

It also regrets that the British Government thinks it necessary to enforce its viewpoint by threatening compulsory measures, whereby Germany will be compelled to take corresponding defensive measures.—Reuter.

WHY INVITATION IS ACCEPTED

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Berlin, June 26.

The German answer to the British transfer note handed in to Downing Street on Monday was published here on Tuesday night. Assenting the British offer for negotiation, the German message says that Germany regrets she is unable to follow the British standpoint which seems to rest partly on mistaken judgment of the recent Berlin transfer conference, and, moreover, that the British Government felt it necessary to push arguments by threat of forcible measures. Because of these, the German Government is necessitated to have recourse in corresponding measures to ward off the worst injuries they would inflict to the German Trade. On the assumption, nevertheless, that the British Government is interested in the regulation for the problem which is fair to both countries and whose solution does not rest solely with Germany, the invitation to immediate parley is accepted.—Transocean Kuo Min.

GERMAN TAX YIELDS

A Substantial Improvement

Berlin, June 27.

A substantial improvement in tax yields is reported by the secretary of the Finance Ministry in the course of denying that a fresh tax will be imposed with a view to promoting German exports. He said that the tax yield in April and May was 120,000,000 marks above the corresponding two months of 1933. He was certain that fiscal receipts will exceed the budget estimates by hundreds of millions marks ond they were thus enabled to cover fresh necessary expenditure.—Reuter.

A BLOW TO THE NEW DEAL

Action by Judge Barnes

Chicago, June 27.

A blow against the New Deal was struck by Federal Judge Barnes who enjoined the Government from enforcing the provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration against six independent Chicago milk dealers.

Judge Barnes pointed out that Wallace was empowered to regulate agricultural commodities "in currents of interstate commerce." Judge Barnes argued that milk production was not interstate commerce.—Reuter.

SHIPPING SUBSIDIES

London, June 27.

Newspapers forecast that the Government plans to aid British shipping, to be announced in the House of Commons on July 3, will take the form of credit facilities to build new ships, provided the old tonnage is scrapped, at a ratio of three old ships for every new ship.

According to the "Daily Mail," the Government has also decided not to make payment in kind in respect of the United States war debt.—Reuter.

HEAT WAVE IN SHANGHAI

Toll Of Six Lives

Shanghai, June 27.

The heat wave here, which yesterday reached a temperature of 102.7 degrees has caused six deaths from heat stroke.

A strong breeze brought some relief yesterday, and the populace near the General Hospital had the advantage of a burst 20-inch water main which turned the vicinity into a lake.

A general abatement of crime has occurred in the last two days, no armed robberies or street fights being reported.—Reuter.

TUNGANS IN POWER

Now Control Kashgar

Simla, June 27.

The Tungans are now in control of Kashgar and practically all of Southern Sinkiang to the Afghan and Kashmir borders.

According to messages received here, renewed fighting recently occurred between the Tungans and the attacking forces from the North Province, presumably directed by local official Chinese with Turki help and under Soviet influence.

The Turki element in Southern Sinkiang under the leadership of Hodja Niez, who claims to be the head of the Turki Republic, is now reported to be desirous to return to the Chinese regime provided Soviet influence is excluded.—Reuter.

SINO-BURMA FRONTIER

Cause of Recent Incident

Simla, June 27

The recent Sino-Burma frontier incident with skirmishes between Chinese bands and Burma Police was apparently caused by the local Chief of Pangjung penetrating, first the undemarcated zone called Hohswan, hitherto mutually respected by Chinese and British, and secondly, into undisputed British territory westwards agreed as the frontier where the collision occurred between the British mineral party on exploring work and the Burma Police. There were no casualties among the police, but Chinese casualties.

The Pang-jung Chief has now established himself at Manchu, Hohswan, and additional police have been despatched to protect undisputed British territory.

Rains haves stopped further fighting.—Reuter.

EXCHANGE FUND UNOPERATED

Small Demand for Sterling

London, June 27.

After prolonged intervention the British Exchange Fund is unoperated to-day. Sterling is strengthening on its own accord owing to the small general demand.

It is believed in some quarters that silver news with possibilities of inflation is causing uncertainty in future gold currencies, resulting in small purchases of sterling.

The Reichsmark firmed up sharply to-day. Yesterday, due to small purchases on a narrow market, the movement was out of proportion to the volume of business.

The "Financial News" estimates that the Exchange Fund has spent £10,000,000 from gold stock to support sterling since the weakness started.—Reuter.

SILVER MARKET

CONTROL OF RUBBER

Agreement Well Advanced

London, June 26.

A communique issued by the second meeting of the International Rubber Regulation Committee states that the Committee welcomed Sir George Beharrell (Britain) and Herr Otto Friedrich (Germany) as members of the Advisory Panel of Manufacturers.

Matters relating to the organisations and the preparation of statistics were considered, and also reports from the various delegations on the measures taken to implement the obligations of their territories under the international agreement.

The Committee is very satisfied with the progress made in the latter direction, which has been very well advanced. The next meeting of the Committee will be held on July 31.—Reuter.

MANCHUKUO DEFENCE

Tokyo, June 27.

French Action In Fukien Outrage

Peiping, June 27.

The bandit, whose name is Po Yu Shen, resisted arrest by opening fire on the police party, but was finally overpowered and confronted with confessions of alleged confederates of his who are reported to have confessed to the killing.—Reuter.

Dr. Ingram was shot during a struggle with one of the robbers who entered his summer home at Shihchungsan in the Western Hills on June 15. Representations were made to Nanking, following which rewards were offered for the apprehension of the assailant.

ADMINISTRATION FUNDS

Misuse Alleged

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, June 27.

The police to-day are looking high and low for Yim Pok Kau, former magistrate of Poon Yuen County, because on examination of the books of the county administration it is found that a sum of $450,000 has not yet been accounted for.

Over $300,000 was to be remitted to the Provincial Department of Finance as contributions for the farm taxes of Poon Yue County, and certain sums for the establishment of a peasants' bank and repairing a damaged levee abutting upon the Pearl River are missing. Mr. Yin was given twenty days to square up this amount, and the time limit expired last Monday.

The irony of the situation is that Yim is known as the "model magistrate." During his regime Magistrate Yim built one fine county administration building facing the Pearl River about 12 miles from Canton. Any one who enters or leaves Canton by river is certain to pass through Shun Cho, leading town of Poon Yue and can see the imposing white building with a massive dome. There are also several piers for launches and two or three modern roads at Shun Cho.

Magistrate Yim lived in Canton during his tenure of office. To reach his county seat every morning, he owned a powerful speed boat, which took him to his office and back every evening. But all the time he was acquiring a fortune, and this led to his dismissal.

The Three-Year Plan insists on having clean and efficient officials, and corrupt public servants are liable to capital punishment.

AUSTRALIANS AT OLD TRAFFORD

Tyldesley Punishes Bowling To Score Century

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, June 9.

As a result of the second day's play in the match between Lancashire and the Australians at Manchester the Australians completed their first innings for 367. In reply Lancashire scored 285 runs, and at the close of play Australia in their second innings had made 26 runs for the loss of McCabe's wicket.

The absence of Wall from the side proved to be a great handicap to the Australian attack, for although Ebeling on occasions troubled the batsmen there was no other bowler on the side capable of making adequate use of the new ball, and practically all the attack fell to the slow bowlers. For some time Grimmett troubled the batsmen, but Old Trafford has never been a lucky ground for Grimmett, and in the end it was left to Fleetwood-Smith to break the backbone of Lancashire's batting. Fleetwood-Smith went on to bowl when Lancashire had made 28 runs, and he was not relieved until Ebeling came on at 200 with the new ball. During this long period Fleetwood-Smith controlled his length extremely well, and for some time after luncheon he looked as though he might run through the Lancashire batting. His analysis is worth considering, for, bowling unchanged for 38 overs, he took five wickets at the comparatively small cost of 107 runs.

A Valuable Innings

Watson and Hopwood gave Lancashire a good start, but Tyldesley was undoubtedly the mainstay of the side. He played a faultless innings of 107, which included 11 4's and one 5, and, valuable as his runs were to his side, his greatest value lay in the confidence which he endeavoured to instill into some of his less experienced partners.

The Australians were out soon after play was continued. Ebeling and Barnett immediately began to attack the bowling, but after adding 30 runs to Saturday's score Ebeling played across a fast breakback from Booth and had his middle stump knocked out of the ground. In attempting a short run Fleetwood-Smith had his wicket thrown down by Tyldesley and the Australian innings closed for 367 runs, Barnett being undefeated with 61 runs to his credit, the result of just under two hours' batting.

Watson and Hopwood opened Lancashire's innings, and played Ebeling and McCabe very confidently. After 19 runs had been scored in as many minutes Woodfull brought Grimmett on in place of McCabe, and a few overs later Fleetwood-Smith relieved Ebeling at the other end. These changes had the effect of slowing down the rate of scoring, but the bowlers got little help from a perfect batsmen's wicket, and after Grimmett's moral effect had worn off the batsmen became aggressive. Watson proceeded to cut Grimmett to the boundary twice in one over, and in the next over 10 runs were hit off Fleetwood-Smith, with the result that 72 runs were on the board at the luncheon interval.

As the result of some very good bowling by Fleetwood-Smith the Australians very definitely took the upper hand after the interval. In that bowler's first over Watson played outside a leg break and was bowled. Tyldesley started his innings by driving Grimmett to the off boundary, but Hopwood was then brilliantly caught in the slips by Chipperfield off Fleetwood-Smith. Lancashire's good start was now largely discounted and, not unnaturally, Tyldesley and Iddon played very carefully. Eventually, however, Iddon straight-drove Grimmett for 4 to bring the 100 up. Watson then became aggressive, and at 119 Woodfull brought Chipperfield on in place of Grimmett. Both batsmen welcomed the change, and the next two overs produced 21 runs. A moment later, however, Iddon was caught at the wicket off Fleetwood-Smith, and at 160 Hawkwood was caught off the same bowler by Grimmett at cover-point.

Lancashire In Trouble

Lancashire were then in a critical position, but worse was to follow, for Washbrook was out leg-before-wicket in Fleetwood-Smith's next over. Tyldesley then completed a faultless 50 by turning Chipperfield to leg, but soon afterwards Grimmett relieved Chipperfield, and with his second ball got Farrimond out leg-before-wicket. With six wickets down Lancashire still needed 34 runs to avoid the follow-on. Eckersley soon settled down, and shortly after tea the 200 was passed and the follow-on saved. Tyldesley then began to attack the bowling whole-heartedly. He soon lost his captain, but continued to hit the ball to all parts of the field, and, after he had been at the wicket for 2¼ hours, completed a faultless century with a straight drive off Ebeling. After scoring seven more runs, however, he played forward to a good-length ball from Chipperfield, was beaten by the break, and was stumped by Barnett. A. D. Baxter was unable to bat, and as the remainder of the side put up very little resistance the innings soon came to an end.

Australia had a little over half an hour's batting at the end of the day, but before stumps were pulled up Booth took McCabe's valuable wicket with a fast inswinger.

LADY MEMBERS

For Singapore Rotary Club?

Singapore, June 21.

Members of the board of directors of the Singapore Rotary Club at their next meeting will debate the advisability of changing the constitution of the club to admit the womenfolk of members as members of the club.

The idea was put forward at yesterday's meeting of the club by Mr. David Frankel, who gave an address on Rotary in England as he saw it during his recent home leave. Mr. Frankel referred to the women's Rotary movement in England, which is known as the Inner Wheel, and expressed the opinion that a movement on the same lines in Singapore might have a beneficial effect.

After Mr. Richard Sidney, in proposing a vote of thanks, had given his warm support to the idea, and pointed out how much more pleasant the meetings of the Singapore club were on those occasions when lady guests were allowed, Mr. Alan Eley, the club president, said the proposal was to be dealt with at the next meeting of the board of control.

Wah Yan College Champions

Owing to the great number of events of the Hong Kong Inter-Scholastic Union Meeting, which had been held on the S.C.A.A. ground continually since last week, the decision of the position of winners had been delayed until yesterday afternoon. Prizes will be distributed next Sunday.

SOOCHOW CREEK RIOT AVERTED

River Police Launch Stoned By Angry Mob

Shanghai, June 23.

Last Thursday there was considerable disorder on Soochow creek when a party of Public Safety Bureau officials attempted to take a census of the boat-dwelling population between Markham Road bridge and Jessfield bridge. It appears that several of the Chinese officials were unable to write and two men were therefore employed to do their writing for them.

The boat-dwellers who are mostly of the beggar class regarded the census as another movement to their disadvantage and left their boats and assembled on Markham Road and Kwang Foh Road along both sides of the creek. The River Police came on the scene and the crowd proceeded to revile them and stoned the police launch. A number of female boat-dwellers attempted to board the police launch but were prevented by the arrival of the Chapei Police. Further police reinforcements arrived and dispersed the crowd which had gathered on Kwong Foh Road. Fourteen females of the crowd were taken to the 4th District Police Station but were subsequently released.

The Municipal Police arrested the two men employed as recorders, who the crowd said had tried to get the sums of $1 to $1.60 from each boat as a procedure fee. The two men were handed over to the River Police who in turn handed them to the Public Safety Bureau.

It is reported that the two recorders were badly beaten up by the crowd. They were only employed as recorders and did not ask for money.

WIMBLEDON TENNIS

More Japanese Upsets

London, June 28.

Following the defeat of Miki in the second round of the tennis championships at Wimbledon, two other Japanese players, Fujikura and Nishimura, were defeated, the wet conditions being largely responsible for their downfall.

Nigel Sharpe (Britain) beat Fujikura 6-4, 3-6, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Sharpe has previously been a giant-killer at Wimbledon, having recorded wins over Henri Cochet, Baron De Morpurgo and several others. He was on the very top of his form, although his baseline shots occasionally found the net.

Fujikura remained on the baseline causing Sharpe to make some spectacular returns by his perfect drives to both corners of the court.

Rain interrupted the match for a short time, but it was sufficient to upset the Japanese. He slipped about the court on the wet grass, and completely lost his touch.

Siba (Czechoslovakia) beat Nishimura (Japan) 8-6, 4-6, 8-6, 2-6, 9-7.

The Japanese held set point at 5-4 in the first and third sets, but a continuation of the rain upset his play. The fact that the ball was coming off very low appeared to disconcert him.

The sun struggled through the clouds at the commencement of the fourth set, enabling the Japanese to display his brilliant net play.

The final set was an endurance test. Nishimura led 4-1, but Siba drew up to 5-4, after which the Japanese tired rapidly, enabling Siba to secure the set and match.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI WEDDING

Temlett—Pill

Shanghai, June 22.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Holy Trinity Cathedral when Miss Ethel May Pill, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Pill of Nottingham, England, became the wife of Mr. Charles Edwin Temlett, son of the late Mr. W. H. Temlett of Burham-on-the-sea, Somerset, England.

Miss Pill, charming in white Nottingham lace and organdie with hat to match, carried a bridal bouquet of white lilies. Her matron of honour, Mrs. F. C. MacPherson, who was gowned in Eau de Nil net and satin, with a hat to match, carried pink carnations. Mr. S. Knowles of the Shanghai Police, was best man, while Mr. F. C. MacPherson of the Chinese Maritime Customs, gave the bride away. The Very Rev. A. S. C. Trivett officiated. A reception followed at the Astor House Hotel where a large number of friends gathered to drink to the happiness of the bride and groom.

Travelling, Mrs. Temlett wore a smart ensemble of white corded silk. Mr. and Mrs. Temlett will make their home at Tsingtao where Mr. Temlett is connected with the Chinese Maritime Customs. Mr. Temlett, well-known locally, formerly made his home here and spent some time at Hong Kong. Mrs. Temlett recently arrived here from England.

PENANG TIGER

Pays Another Visit

Penang, June 19.

The Penang tiger paid a visit to the bungalow of Mr. M. Saravanamuttu, editor of the Straits Echo, last night.

Mrs. Saravanamuttu was awakened in the small hours of the morning by a shrill snarl, accompanied simultaneously by the barking of dogs in the vicinity. She peered out of the window but noticed nothing, but in the morning, the pug marks of the tiger were clearly visible on the drive.

It is still hard to account for a tiger in Penang. Two cubs which were in the possession of a Siamese woman at Jelutong were destroyed by the Police when the woman was charged with cruelty to animals. Another two cubs were kept by Mr. O. M. Noordin of Burmah Road some time ago, but these were also shot when the beasts became too big to roam about the house mingle with the children.

BRITISH GOLF TITLE

Qualifying Round

London, June 26.

Bert Gadd, of Brand Hall, Birmingham, headed the list of players in the qualifying round of the British Open Golf Championship, which was played over the Royal Cinque Ports Course at Deal, and St. George's, Sandwich, to-day.

Players with scores of 152 or better qualified for the final stages. Gadd had cards of 70 and 69, giving him an aggregate of 139.

The standard of golf was magnificent, the score for qualifying being the lowest in the history of the championship, which resulted in the former champions Duncan, Braid, White, Herd, Ray, and Havers, who was the last Englishman to win the championship, failing to qualify.

Henry Cotton went round in 68 and 75, Percy Alliss and James Adams, of Ireland, tied for second place with rounds of 74 and 67, both players breaking the record for the Deal course.

Americans Unconvincing

Several Americans qualified, but their play was unconvincing. Gene Sarazen, 1932 winner, returned cards of 75 and 75, and Densmore Shute, last year's winner, had a 76 and 73. Macdonald Smith 75 and 73, and Joe Kirkwood 75 and 75.

The best amateur was Storey, the former Cambridge captain, whose two rounds of 70 and 73 gave him third place. Robert Sweeny broke the amateur record for the Deal course, recording rounds of 76 and 69.

James Wallace, of Troon, who was defeated so badly by Lawson Little in the Final of the British Amateur Championship at St. Andrews, in May 1 failed to qualify, his aggregate being 160.—Reuter.

The following is a summary of the scores:—

Gadd (Britain) 70, 69=139.
Alliss (Britain) 74, 67=141.
Adams (Ireland) 74, 67=141.
Cotton (Brussels) 66, 75=141.
Sarazen (U.S.) 75, 75=150.
Shute (U.S.) 76, 73=149.
Smith (U.S.) 75, 73=148.
Kirkwood (U.S.) 75, 75=150.
Storey (Britain) 70, 73=143.
Sweeney (Britain) 76, 69=145.

'FRESH AIR FUND' OF SHANGHAI

Hungjao Road Camp Nearly Ready For Children

Shanghai, June 22.

Members of the Fresh Air Fund of the Joint Committee of Shanghai Women's Organizations were "at home" on Wednesday afternoon at the Summer Camp, situated on Great Western Road Extension, to about 80 guests who showed the greatest interest in the work which has been carried out so far. The Camp is almost ready for the first party of children and although little has been done for the garden, the season being too far advanced for much planting of trees or shrubs, the house, which was in a bad state of repair when the property was so kindly loaned to the Fresh Air Fund Committee, has been put into excellent condition, painted and whitewashed and provided with screening, so that children who will go out for a change of air during the coming summer months will be comfortably housed.

Mrs. Arthur N. Young, chairman of the Fresh Air Fund Committee, was chief hostess, and was assisted by Mesdames D. Chung, A. de Garcia, L. C. Hylbert, Ishida, P. Komor, R. E. Lunkley, K. F. Mulder, M. Nardone, W. A. L. Pardoe P. Premet, W. S. Read, and K. Rothe.

A number of guests brought gifts for the household. These included an alarm clock and some thermos bottles, tennis balls and racquets and further additions to the linen cupboard.

The donor of the ground has supplied 20 hospital cots with mattresses and pillows, but sheets and blankets will have to be found by the Committee.

The first group of children to take advantage of the new Summer Camp will be a party of Chinese boys from the Nantao Institute, who will be under the care of Mr. Wilmot Boone.

Other children who are expected to find a holiday home for a few days during the summer will come from families helped by the Salvation Army, the Social Service Board of the British Women's Association, and from homes known to the Young Women's Christian Association.

In every instance the children will be in charge of one or two responsible grown-ups, and each party will occupy the Camp for one week.

THE SWIMMING ASSOCIATION

Satisfactory State of Finances

The monthly meeting of the Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association was held yesterday at Messrs. Lane, Crawford's Restaurant, when Mr. Wong Kam Ying took the chair in the absence of the Chairman, Mr. Y. K. Mok who was away in Canton on business.

Those present included Mr. R. Goldman (Hon. Secretary), Mr. A. G. Donn (Hon. Treasurer), Mr. Harold Wing Lee, Mr. Ng Kam Chuen, and Mr. Woodward.

The Secretary in dealing with the correspondence intimated that as a result of correspondence from Mr. Wee Swee Ghoe, who is at present coaching the Canton Amateur Athletic Federation's swimmers, there is every possibility of an Interport contest between the latter body and the Association.

Messrs. Donn and Goldman were elected to serve on the Water Polo Sub-Committee with Mr. Leung Tit Sang of South China should the latter be able to do so and pending his confirmation.

In addition to Mr. Donn who is chairman of the Finance Committee, Messrs. E. F. Selk and Wong Kam Ying were also elected to serve on that Committee.

The election of an Executive Committee was not fully completed but Dr. Tsoi Tsz Shek of the Chinese Bathing Club and Mr. Yeung Chi Nam of South China were elected pending confirmation. One other vacancy was left open to the next meeting.

Mr. A. G. Donn commented favourably upon the Exhibition staged by the Japanese World and Far Eastern Olympic swimmers and said that the function had been carried through very successfully as most members were aware.

The expenditure in this connection was very great, advertising, souvenirs and the cost of the stand erected had taken a large toll of the receipts.

World Record?

Commenting upon the special souvenir to Kolke who is claimed to have established a new world record for the 200 Yards Breast Stroke, Mr. Donn remarked that he was in possession of the latest figures for the world records and was very dubious whether Kolke's record was a record.

The official time given was 2 mins. 25-3/5 secs. by T. Cartonnet, while Kolke registered 2 mins. 28-2/5 secs. However a special souvenir was applied for and on the proposal of the Secretary and seconded by Mr. Wong Kam Ying a vote of $20 for a gold medal specially engraved was unanimously passed.

Mr. Donn then said that the Association's credit balance stood at about $450, which the Committee expressed as being very satisfactory.

Mr. Goldman proposed a vote of thanks be accorded Mr. E. F. Selk and members of the European Y.M.C.A., who helped to make the Japanese Exhibition the success it turned out to be. The Chairman, Mr. Wong Kam Ying seconded the proposal which was unanimously passed.

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Belgrade, June 26.

The Chamber of deputies and the Senate assembled on Tuesday noon for a joint festive sitting in honour of the French Foreign Minister, M. Barthou. The speeches were confined to polite generalities and to the reaffirmation of "inviolability of peace treaties" which were especially stressed by the Premier, Uzonovitch.

Barthou recalled the services rendered by France in establishing the new Yugoslav State and assure the gathering of the "bonds of sincere affection uniting the two countries."—Transocean Kuo Min.

ADAMSON'S CLAIM SUCCEEDS

business, and the question of reputation was material

Mr. D'Almada:—Mr. Blumenthal was aware of this case before he engaged the plaintiff.

Nominal Damages

Mr. Macnamara:—You brought a claim against Mr. Newman of the Gloucester uilding for libel and slander for $1,000 and demanded an apology. I put it to you that the apology was refused and you were given $1 damages?—Yes, I only wanted nominal damages.

Mr. Justice Lindsell said then that the case should never have been brought to Court, and I say now that this case is grossly exaggerated?—I don't think so.

Mr. Blumenthal was interposed at this point.

Mr. D'Almada:—Mr. Lanepart tells me that some days after you got rid of Mr. Adamson, he, Mr. Lanepart, said to you, "Why did you sack Addmson; he was not drunk." You answered, "We don't need him; we can do without him." Is that true

Witness: No.

If Adamson had not been "continually drunk, as you say, would you have fired him?—No. If he shuts up in time and looks after the cash he is a good man.

Mr. Lanepart Called

Mr. Lanepart, was next called. He stated that he was formerly given free meals and a salary to look after the books of the Marcel Cafe. Speaking of the Buffet business, witness said: "As soon as Mr. Adamson came, matters got better and better until he was dismissed, much to the disapproval of the staff."

Mr. D'Almada:—Did you ever find Mr. Adamson drunk or misconducting himself in the business?—Never. In my opinion he did his work well. They could not find a better man to do it. The business has dropped since.

Witness said when Mr. Blumenthal was on holiday Adamson said he wanted the Buffet books kept well so witness took them over.

When Adamson was sacked he told Mr Blumenthal it was a mistake and that he was not drunk. Mr. Blumenthal replied; "We don't need him. We can do without him."

Everything For Himself

Continuing, witness said:—"I went with Mr. Blumenthal to see Mr. George K. Hall Brutton and he started to tell a long story of what had happened and I could not help it. I burst out instinctively and said 'The whole trouble is that Mr. Blumenthal wants everything for himself.'"

Were your services dispensed with afterwards?—When we got back, Mr. Blumenthal spoke to me very angrily. He said: "How dare you speak of me like that You are my employee and must speak for me. I will give it back to you sometime." I asked him if I was dismissed and he said "No," but after I had presented a statement of accounts he dismissed me.

Chan Fook, a cashier said:—"One day Mr. Blumenthal called me into a small room and said he was calling me as a witness. He said to me 'You must say he (Adamson) was drunk.' He also told me I was to go into Court and tell the Court that it was my own knowledge that Adamson had given the former cashier $10 a month out of his own pocket in order that he would not record in his books an order for food Adamson had obtained from the Cafe, and also that any goods for which Adamson had signed, say if it was $10, he was to put down $5. Furthermore Mr. Blumenthal told me to tell the Court that Adamson had also offered to pay me $10 to treat him in the same way as the other cashier."

His Lordship:—Was there any truth in it?

Witness:—It is not true.

Witness, continuing said:—I told Mr. Bulmenthal that I could not do that because I knew of my own knowledge that Mr. Adamson paid fully for all he signed for. I said I would look into the matter and Mr. Blumenthal then said "That's all right for the time being, but come up to my room sometime and bring a pencil and paper so that you can write it down and remember to say it in Court." I did not go up.

Mr. D'Almada:—When you left on September 14 was there any mention of you being a witness?

Wage Question

Witness:—I asked him for two months' wages because he had dismissed me. He said he would only give me 15 days wages and said "If you want to be a witness for Mr. Adamson you had better look to him for your two months' salary." Mr. Blumenthal then told Richter to go upstairs and make out an agreement for me to sign stating that I would not go as a witness for Mr. Adamson. If I signed that, he would pay me. I refused to sign such an agreement and he only paid me for 14 days.

In answer to cross-examination, witness stated he was dismissed because on the night of September 14 his cash was $1 more than the amount on the cash register.

Counsel on both sides addressed the Court after which judgment was given.

ITALIAN FLEET SURPRISE

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Paris, June 26.

News from Tirana state that the first Italian Adriatic fleet consisting of twenty units unexpectedly appeared in the harbour of the Albanian seaport of Durazzo on Monday, causing considerable excitement in political circles here where it is interpreted as a demonstration against Barthou's visit to Belgrade. Most of the papers state that Italy is endeavouring to bolster up her shaken prestige in Eastern Europe and especially Albania where her influence is said to be on the wane since the conclusion of the treaty between Albania and Yugoslavia.

The Belgrade correspondent of the newspaper "Oeuvre" reports that the Italian warships' arrival in Durazzo is causing little anxiety in the Yugoslav Government circles where the situation is not judged as dangerous unless the Italians should decide to land troops which is considered unlikely.

The correspondent goes on to say that the revolutionary movement in Albania by no means terminated and there are still existing possibilities of a change of Government which might find the support of several great powers.—Transocean Kuo Min.

PRISONER'S BREAK AWAY

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Dresden, June 26.

The country gaol of the town of Oelsnitz near the Czechoslovakian border was the scene of a sensational break away when a Communist prisoner strangled the warden and escaped with two fellow prisoners by forcing the murdered man's wife to open the prison door. Since the escaped trio, who were awaiting trial on a charge of terrorist activities, are expected to make a break for the frontier, the police and storm troops have been detailed to guard the border.—Transocean Kuo Min.

HUPEH CHAIRMAN'S DENIAL

Says Rumour of Transfer to Chihli Groundless

Shanghai, June, 23.

General Chang Chun, Chairman of the Hupeh Provincial Government, and formerly Mayor of Shanghai, who arrived from Nanking on Thursday morning, denied the rumour that he would be appointed Chairman of the Chihli Provincial Government, in an interview with Press representatives yesterday morning. He said he had made inquiries and found the rumour to be groundless.

Speaking on the administration of Hupeh, General Chang revealed that the Huper river police had been disbanded due to inefficiency. The first stage of his plan for the re-organization of the police would be realized at the end of August, when six patrol boats would be delivered to the Provincial Government by the Kiangnan Dock. During his sojourn here, he would proceed to the Dock to inspect the construction of the boats.

The Navigation Bureau of the Provincial Government, General Chang said, had taken over the ferry services in the province three months ago following the repeated occurrence of shipping disasters within the limits of the province. Satisfactory results had been obtained, he said.

Following the adoption of a retrenchment policy, the budget of the Provincial Government was balanced, General Chang continued. The Province was generally peaceful.

FORGED BANKNOTES

Police Carry Out Raids

In connection with the circulation of forged banknotes in the Colony, we understand from the Police authorities that a number of raids were carried out on Tuesday, as a result of which a large quantity of papers and documents were seized for examination. In the course of the raid a number of safes were removed to Police Headquarters, for the contents to be examined.

No arrests were made in connection with the raids, and it is understood that the papers examined so far have furnished no assistance to the police authorities.

FOR WIGHTMAN CUP MATCH

Mrs. Godfree To Play

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, June 14.

The British women's team to oppose America in the Wightman Cup match at Wimbledon on June 15 and 16 will be:

Miss D. Round, Miss M. C. Scriven, Miss B. Nuthall, Mrs. L. A. Godfree, Miss N. M. Lyle and Miss E. Dearman.

There are five singles and two doubles matches on the card. Miss Round and Miss Scriven will play two singles each and Miss Nuthall one. The doubles pairs are Mrs. Godfree and Miss Nuthall and Miss Lyle and Miss Dearman.

In opposition on the American side are Miss Jacobs and Miss Palfrey in two singles each, and Miss Babcock in one singles. The American doubles pairs will be Miss Jacobs and Miss Palfrey and Miss Babcock and Miss Cruickshank.

Match-Winning Factor

The result of the contest is likely to turn on the major singles. Miss Jacobs beat both Miss Round and Miss Scriven when she last met them on a turf court, and in the interval she has defeated Mrs. Moody. These results will not diminish her confidence.

On the other hand Miss Scriven, as Paris revealed, is playing better this year than last, and no doubt she obtained useful tactical knowledge of the American title holder's game when she met and defeated her in the final of the French championship.

If Miss Round's stroke play and Miss Scriven's match-fighting ability can both compass the defeat of Miss Jacobs, a British victory is assured; and even if the American champion should win two singles points, the visitors cannot guarantee the two further points to command success.

America's Misfortune

Miss Marble's illness is a misfortune for the Americans, but in Miss Sarah Palfrey the team has a player quite capable, as she proved at Forest Hills last year when she beat Miss Scriven of rising to the occasion. Yet Miss Palfrey, like Miss Jacobs, fell to Miss Scriven in Paris last week. Miss Round beat Miss Palfrey in New York last August 6—4, 10—8.

Miss Nuthall and Miss Babcock met last year in America, when Miss Nuthall won in three sets. The result of their encounter next week must be uncertain.

—England has a good, but not a conclusive chance capturing both the doubles matches. Mrs. Godfree and Miss Nuthall are not, as reported, a new combination—they have won several tournaments together in the past. Miss Lyle and Miss Dearman, although both new to the Wightman Cup match, have the strokes and the sympathetic understanding requisite for doubles. Their selection is a tribute to their successful partnership.

DIVORCED CASE

Undefended Suit In England

On the grounds that her husband Capt. Joseph Crosthwaite had committed misconduct with a Chinese girl in Hong Kong, Mrs. Winifred Mary Crosthwaite, who gave her address as Empress Avenue, The Drive, Ilford, was granted an undefended petition in the Divorce Court last month before the President, Sir Boyd Merriman.

During the hearing it was stated that the parties were married at Hackney Register Office on September 25, 1918, and later came to live in Hong Kong. Mrs. Crosthwaite returned to England for a time in 1930, and on her return to the Colony found that her husband had committed misconduct with a Chinese girl.

Mrs. Crosthwaite was given the custody of the two children of the marriage.

"TAX REFORM" IN GERMANY

Based on Three Principles

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright.)]

Berlin, June 26.

The main outline of the eagerly awaited National-Socialist "tax reform" which is scheduled to go into effect this autumn, was announced by the State Secretary of Economics, Reinhardt, on Tuesday. The party's tax specialist emphasised that no new taxes are to be introduced nor any existing taxes increased and not before all will be renovated, a system will be introduced to contain a type of assessment for the sake of furthering the German export. Nevertheless, since the general state of the Budget permits no reduction in tax receipts, the present State income must not only again be reached next year but actually surpassed.

The pressing reason for this, Reinhardt pointed but, is the necessity of wiping out in the coming years the considerable charges already made on the future budget in the interest of the work creation programme, so that any deficit in extensive protions will be avoided. The State Secretary cited the amounts by which the tax receipts in April and May exceeded the Budget estimates as the reason for confidence that the Reich treasury would end the year 1934 with a surplus of several millions.

"The tax policy in Adolf Hitler's State," said Reinhardt, "is based on three great principles——1, the fight to reduce unemployment; 2, the promotion of family life; and 3, to emphasise the value of personality and personal responsibility in business."

The main change in the commercial life embodied in the tax reform plan is the reduction of the present turnover tax from 2 to .5 per cent. while most of the revolutionary shake-up are provided in the income tax division. Here the exemptions will be practically doubled for the families with more than two children and substantially reduced for all married couples. The families of five children, for instance, will be completely free of tax if the income does not exceed 10,000 marks. The definition of "child" is to be extended from minors to family members up to the age of 25 if still supported by parents.

Despite the plans to incorporate the various other minor taxes in the income tax under the new scheme, the payments in the lowest brackets will begin at 8 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. as formerly, and end in the highest brucket at 35 instead of 40.—Transocean Kuo Min.

STORMTROOPS TO DISCARD BROWN SHIRTS

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright.)]

Berlin, June 26.

The stormtroops in the Berlin province of Brandenburg, for the first time in the history of the organisation, will voluntarily discard the famous brown shirts by a special order of the local leader on Tuesday which forbids the wtaring of the uniform through the entire "vacation month" of July.

An earlier order by the Reich Minister, Roehm, commander-in-chief of the brown battalions excused every stormtrooper in the nation from service during the same period.—Transocean Kuo Min.

COMEDIAN KILLED

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright.)]

Prague, June 26.

One of the leading comedians of the German stage of former days, Max Pallenberg, was among those killed when a passenger plane of the Czechoslovakian airline crashed shortly before an attempted landing at Karlsbad airport owing to a defect in the steering gear. The three occupants—the pilot and two passengers—were killed instantly.—Transocean Kuo Min.

LATE NIGHT CABLES

The following cable received last night are forwarded by the American Oriental Finance Corporation and Messrs. S. E. Levy & Co.:—

A.O.F.C. New York Cable:

Stocks:—The President's broadcast scheduled for Thursday and the Atchison Ry. Dividend were responsible for yesterday strength. At the opening prices were higher with metal stocks the feature. The volume of business tended to decrease on the up turn.

Silver:—Heavy liquidation of July and December was in evidence with July being absorbed by the same source. The banks continue to buy, near sell forward.

Cotton:—Scattered and southern selling was absorbed by the trade.

Wheat:—The weather was clear and warm in the S. W., cloudy in the N. W. with the temperature normal. There was some rain in Canada.

NEW YORK STOCK AND COMMODITY QUOTATIONS

AMERICAN ORIENTAL FINANCE CORPORATION AND S. E. LEVY & CO.

New York, June 26.

The American Oriental Finance Corporation report through their New York agents, Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co., states:—

Stocks:—We think that to-day's strength was generally a surprise. The announcement of a $2 special dividend by Atchison Common and the increase in the quarterly U.S. Smelting dividend to $2 helped the market at the close. It appeared as if metals, sugars and tobaccos might lead any further rally.

Wheat:—Nervous. The local market is following the Kansas City market. Later, the market was firm, despite large receipts in the South-West. The Winnipeg market was firm early in the day, but closed easy in sympathy with the Chicago market. The standard for grades of Chicago wheat changes on July 2. On and after that date, old or new crop wheat must be specified on all orders.

Cotton:—Following an opening set-back, there was a good demand, which was mainly induced by lack of rain in the Western Belt and expectations of a bullish weekly weather report from Texas to-morrow. Approximately 26,000 bales were tendered for July, which is believed to have been taken by very large spot interests.

Silver:—Observers said that it appeared as though Government purchases of July options were being made at between 45.40 and 45.45. Speculators are buying December options from Banking interests.

New York, June 26.

Messrs. S. E. Levy & Company's report, through their New York agents, Messrs. White, Weld & Co., states:—

Stocks:—The reappearance of strength on the part of gold shares to-day again emphasises the favoured position of this group and tends to confirm the belief that these and other inflationary issues are likely to perform better than the rest of the market during the current period of uncertainty. General sentiment was somewhat improved to-day. Business done: 620,000 shares.

Bonds:—A small demand off the Street caused slightly higher prices for high-grades. Second-grades improved with stocks.

Cotton:—Prices were higher on heavy local and speculative buying throughout the day. Weather conditions in Teras are unfavourable. We continue to recommend purchases.

Silver:—The market ruled quiet and steady. It is rumoured that considerable private and investment buying is now under way on the belief that the rise in price will be so large that the risk will be warranted in face of the excessive tax on profits. Sales: 145 contracts.

Rubber:—The market was strong on heavy buying by the Trade and commission houses throughout the day. The Rubber Restriction Act will come into effect in August and we anticipate a sharp advance before then. Purchases are still recommended. Business done: 496 contracts.

Wheat:—Nervous liquidation towards the close caused a reaction. Monday's sales 28,636,000 bushels.

The Chase Bank is divorcing Chase Securities, therefore the old stock certificate covering both must be split into separate certificates of Chase Banks and American Exchange Holding Corporation. The plan is now operative, but the permission of the Exchange is required as a matter of form.

GERMAN SHARE MARKET

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright.)]

Berlin, June 26.

No signs in the improvement of the volume of business of the sharemarket were perceptible on Tuesday largely because of the usual monthly settlement and the end of the half year make investors, in a normal way, cautious; but on a small turnover, the prices showed an upward trend. The fixed interest security market was decidedly weaker, considerable quantities of gold and mortgage bonds and municipal bonds being offered which in part were taken up by the Reichsbank to support the market. Despite this, the prices declined half to 1½ per cent.

Call Money 4 per cent., Young Loan unquoted, yesterday 91, Reichsbank advanced 1/8 to 154, Dyetrusts 5/8 better at 150, Salzdetfurth Potash jumped 3½ to 169½, German Steel Trusts ½ firmer at 40½, German Mineral Oils rose 5/8 to 120½, Siemenshalske 1.1/8 better at 150, and Bemberg Rayon improved 1½ to 68½.—Transocean Kuo Min.

MAN KILLED BY LIONS

Clawed and Pulled Into Den

(Special Air-mail Service).
London, June 14.

A tragedy without precedent in the history of the Zoological Society occurred at Whipsnade Zoo Park to-day, when Mr. Stanley Lewis Stenson, an employee of the catering department, was mauled by two lions, and was killed.

Stenson was attempting to recover a hat belonging to a visitor, which was at the bottom of the lion pit. He had walked along a parapet within the encolsure when one of the animals sprang at him, attempting to drag him down.

At first the beast clawed the man by the left arm. Then it grabbed him by a foot, pulling off one of his boots.

The visitor whose hat had been lost attempted to hold Stenson, who, however, ultimately fell intd the pit.

Two of the four lions then dragged him across the enclosure, a distance of thirty or forty yards to a bush.

Keepers with poles attempted to beat off the beasts, and a number of blank cartridges were fired. Ultimately the animals were caged.

Stenson was found to be dead. He had been injured, probably rendered insensible, by his fall on to the concrete floor of the pit and had been badly mauled by the animals.

The lions had been fed only shortly before the incident.

Attempted Rescue

It was the hat belonging to Mr. Horace Myhill, a visitor from London, whose loss led to the tragedy. Mr. Myhill was being shown around by Stenson.

Mr. Myhill said to-night:

"I cannot say much about it. All I know is that my hat, for some unknown cause, fell into the arena as I was speaking to Stanley Stenson, who at once volunteered to go down into the pit and recover it.

"I thought he was joking but he climbed the three-feet concrete parapet, got on to the railings which are topped by spikes inverted towards the pit, and endeavoured to climb down to secure my hat.

"I shouted to him to stop, but he did not. So I climbed after him. There was only one lion in the arena so far as I noticed at the time. It immediately made for Stenson.

"Hanging to the railings by one hand I clasped hold of Stenson's left hand, but the lion commenced to maul him and rag him away from me. In spite of all the strength and efforts that I could put in I had to give way and see him dragged off.

"By this time the alarm had been raised, and the keepers came along and endeavoured to beat the lion off with poles. Three other lions came out of the den and joined the fray. I saw the head keeper fire a shotgun at the four lions, but it did not seem to have much effect.

"It wasn't until a number of keepers and other employees of the Zoo beat the lions back that poor Stenson was able to be dragged from the arena. He was terribly mauled."

A small crowd of visitors watched horror-stricken while the fight with the lions was in progress. Women screamed, and one or two fainted.

The doctor who was called said that Stenson was very badly mauled. "He had fallen several feet on to some concrete, and I think that must have made him insensible. I believe he had a fractured skull."

Bostock's Animals

The four lions formerly belonged to Bostock's Menagerie, now disbanded. Although they are moderately friendly towards the keepers, they are by no means tame. The keepers have been unable to go into the enclosure with the beasts at large.

This is the first time that a Zoo lion has been responsible for a fatal accident, and no such incident has ever occurred in the Regent's Park menagerie.

The lions' enclosure is an old chalk quarry surrounded by iron bars 15 feet in height, except at one point where the pit is enforced with concrete. Here is a bridge with a parapet, bars closing over the quarry to a length of about 3 feet.

This bridge is intended as a platform for visitors, and it is at this spot that the tragedy occurred.

Mr. Stenson was 26, and unmarried. He lived with a married brother at Flint Cottage, Studham (Beds), about two miles from Whipsnade.

JAPANESE COTTON SARONG TRADE

Singapore June 22.

Indian sarong manufacturers can afford to smile at the introduction of the foreign textiles quotas.

Japan's cotton sarong trade in this market, built up from 1,005 sarongs, worth little more than $500, in 1927 to 5,751,000 sarongs, worth $2,088,000 in 1933, has been whittled down to a mere 24,000 sarongs for the quota period. Tremendous increase in Japan's trade in cotton sarongs has only taken place in the past two years, reducing Indian imports during the period from 4,024,000 sarongs in 1927 to 1,287,000 in 1933, and the Netherlands Indian share of the market from 4,322,000 to 1,807,000.

This is the most striking example of the effect the quotas will have upon Japan's share of the Malayan piece goods market.

Two important developments are expected as a result of the publication of the quotas.

One is that soon the quotas will embrace textile "lines" other than the seven already enumerated.

Japan's Quotas Already Nearly Filled.

Merchants estimate meanwhile that Japan will fill in a matter of weeks the quotas allowed for the rest of the year. In some cases it is understood the quotas are very nearly filled.

Expectations upon the second development are based on the extent of Japanese imports of textile into Malaya during 1933 and the fact that imports this year have shown a steady increase.

Japan is allowed to import into Malaya for local consumption from May 7, to Dec. 31, this year the following quantities in respect of her five chief piece goods exports:

	Yards.
Dyed Cotton:	9,778,823
Printed Cottons:	5,713,457
Plain Cotton:	2,367,888
Cotton Sarongs etc. (allowing 2 yards per sarong).	49,396
Artificial Silk:	4,361,246

This represents two-thirds of the average imports between the years 1927-31 after allowance has been made for re-exports, i.e., on the average net imports.

Gross imports from Japan during 1933 in respect of the five "lines" above quoted were:

	Yards.
Dyed Cotton:	26,200,000
Printed Cottons:	46,500,000
Plain Cotton:	26,500,000
Cotton Sarongs: ...... (allowing 2 yards per sarong).	11,500,000
Artificial Silk:	15,812,000

Deducting the percentages on account of re-exports, the net imports become:

	Yards.
Dyed Cotton:	19,126,000
Printed Cottons:	26,505,000
Plain Cotton:	20,670,000
Cotton Sarongs:	5,750,000
Artificial Silk:	14,705,000

The percentages of the average imports of foreign countries from 1927-31, which it is calculated were re-exported are as follow:— Plain cotton, 22.02 per cent; Dyed cotton, 27.17 per cent; Printed cotton 43.38 per cent; Woven coloured cotton, 28.19 per cent; Cotton sarongs, slendangs and kains, 50.21 per cent; artificial silk piece goods, 7.39 per cent; artificial silk sarongs, 43.81 per cent.

Thus it will be seen that the monthly average net imports last year were roughly in each case, 1,597,100 yards, 2,408,750 yards, 1,225,430 yds. and 1,722,500 yards. If this rate of import has been maintained this year it means that Japan will have in the six weeks since May 7, exported to Malaya a large proportion of this imports she is allowed for the rest of the year. This is most strikingly demonstrated in the case of plain cottons.

The most notable blow struck at the Japanese imports is in the class of goods which comprises sarongs, slendangs and kains. The quota allowed Japan is only 24,698 sarongs, or 49,396 yards, whereas her imports into Malaya last year totalled 5,751,156 sarongs, roughly 11,502,000 yards, worth $2,088,843. The drastic curtailment of this class of Japanese business, while not helping Lancashire, will benefit considerably Indian manufacturers and importers who have dwindling rapidly in the face of Japanese competition.

Japanese Merchants' Comments.

"It is a very bad thing for us," declared several Japanese importers of textiles yesterday. "Some of the smaller Japanese merchant will have to move from Singapore. They will not only lose in the local market, but the export trade in Japanese printed cotton, sarongs and other piece goods to Sumatra and Bangkok will dwindle."

Mr. N. Simoda, manager of B. N. Simoda and Co., one of the largest Japanese cotton importers in Singapore, anticipates that after a slight increase in prices owing to a "mild rush" they will actually fall back to the present level until the stocks-in-hand are exhausted. A rise will thereafter be inevitable.

Most Japanese importers concur. They expect that their prices will roar after about two months. when little or nothing of the old stocks will be available.

"Our prices will never rise to the same level as British textiles," one importer declared. "I think the highest they can go is 70 per cent. of the British prices simply because Japanese goods would not sell on a par with British."

The Japanese deplore the anticipated loss of trade with small merchants in Sumatra, who have relied on supplies from Singapore importers mainly because of the lack of direct steamship services between their chief port, Belawan, and Japan in the past.

European merchants were reserved in their comments, preferring more time to study the effect of the measures.

The Chief Secretary to the F.M.S. Government by notification under the Customs Enactment prohibits the importation into the Federated Malay States, otherwise than from the Colony or from a Malay State, of any class or classes of textile goods, manufactured in any country not being a part of the British Empire in respect of which a quota has been fixed by the Governor of the Straits Settlements by Proclamation under the Importation of Textiles (Quotas) Ordinance, 1934, except under licence issued by the Registrar-General of Statistics, Straits Settlements and Federated Malay States, and in accordance with the terms and conditions of such licence, which shall specify the quantity, class, and country of manufacture of textile goods which may be imported, the place of import, and the period during which the licence is valid.
